THE GREAT EASTERN.

Her Speed and Working in the Channel—Incidents of the Voyage—Facts about her Safety—The London Press vs. Engineering Facts.

From Our Special Correspondent.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 16, 1859.

Some important facts have been developed in the first voyage of the Great Eastern, which have been blunderingly mis-stated by some of the newspapers, and kept rather quiet by others. Since they are not referred to in my letters of the 8th and 9th, describing the passage to the Nore and the excursion, a brief mention of them may be interesting.

The first trip of the Great Eastern was not intended for a trial trip, and cannot be called a trial trip in any save three particulars—and in these only to a limited extent—first, the facility with which she obeys her helm; secondly, the character and working of her machinery; and thirdly, the strength of the structure. With the exception of the positively unsafe features, appearances and results were very satisfactory; but they were neither unexpected nor—reasoning from experience—unprecedented. The whole affair is, also, a timely commentary on the prevalent fashion of sacrificing engineering completeness for the purpose of hurrying on commercial results.

Supposing the ship and engines to be well built, the entire voyage does not furnish the first datum with reference to high speeds or economy—the great questions. I mention this, first, because it is due to the managers of the ship, especially in view of the disaster; and, secondly, because so many absurd statements have been published as to her extraordinary swiftness, as if she would run ten miles an hour faster than the wheels that propelled her! The trip was the simple bringing of the vessel to Portland without the risk of even ordinary strain and pressure. This idea was literally carried out, especially by Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL, who was repeatedly blamed for "compelling the screw to drive the vessel and his engines beside."

Her steering was a perfect success. The voyage down the Thames demonstrated her ability to turn short corners. A perceptible Atlantic swell, underlying the visible waves, was experienced in the Channel; but neither this nor the small channel-seas appeared to modify her obedience to her helm. So that point is established. But there are two other questions touching her steering. Since the old of donkey engines was not, and probably could not be dispensed with, in addition to the eight men at the wheel, in this smooth sailing, should there not be some more reliable auxiliary than a mere hoisting apparatus? And again: If ordinary steering wheels are sometimes struck out of the hands of the helmsmen by the waves, what will the broad rudder of the Great Eastern have to resist in a beam sea, especially if she, as predicated, does not roll nor pitch, but stands "like a rock?"

The holding of the vessel was a matter widely discussed. Either the unexpectedly small resistance of the ship, or the firm bite of the Trotman anchor—probably the latter—has set that question very happily at rest. One 4½-ton anchor held the vessel and half-a-dozen steamboats against wind and current in the Thames, even after she had swung three times with the tide. The same anchor held her fast in the Nore against a reefing breeze and again at Portland, without a slip. Not the holding of the vessel, but the weighing anchor, is the sticking point. In the river, fifty minutes were occupied in hauling it up, the auxiliary engine provided for that purpose being in use half the time to say nothing of three tiers of sailors and passengers at the capstan. At the Nore, nearly two hours elapsed before the anchor came up. The auxiliary gear broke down; a tooth was out of a wheel. It seems too light to do much good, or else there is not power enough in the friction clutch by which it is applied. It made very little difference with the anchor whether it was in gear or out of gear. The "kinking" of the cable was another source of delay. I think it will be found that these heavy cables need more conveniences for their handling than have been employed with light chains. The Trotman anchor is, without doubt, the best and cheapest device for holding ships. To be sure it often gives a little trouble in catching under the fore foot of sharp ships, but the anchor is not often used, and every convenience should be sacrificed if its legitimate service can be bettered when it is wanted.

As to the working of the engines and the speed: As I at first observed, this was not a trial trip. A 3,000-mile stretch would be likely to afford a better basis for conclusions. However, a few particulars may be useful and interesting. When the steam tugs were cast off, some 15 miles above the Nore, the ship began to show her heels to them, though her exertions were really very moderate. The quickest time made was 13 nautical miles an hour, the screw engines making about 22 turns, and the paddles from 7 to 9. The steam on the boilers was from 17 to 20 lbs., but in all cases it was more or less throttled, so that its pressure in the cylinders was not known. Some diagrams were taken, but the horse-power indicated did not transpire. No one could object to this, since it was not a trial trip. According to Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL'S table of the speeds of the centres of resistance in both screw and paddle, the paddle-wheel (i. e. its centre of resistance) moved 14.78 knots at 9 revolutions, while the screw would only move 14.75 knots at 24 revolutions. In this case, therefore, the paddles seemed to have the most slip, but they probably turned nine times a minute for a very short time. During this thirteen-knot trip, both wind and tide were with the vessel. The next day, however, in the Channel, there was a strong head wind, and sea enough, I should suppose, to affect the speed a knot or so in a day. For the first hour after leaving the Nore, the screw averaged 26 revolutions—i. e. 11.26 knots—and the paddles 7—i. e. 11.49 knots. There being no log nor landmarks which would tell our speed, it was estimated by the initiated to be from 9 to 10 knots. Somebody threw a stick overboard and found it to be 21 statute miles (!), which I think, after a careful calculation of the revolutions, was inaccurate; The time between the North and South Forelands was less than 8 knots an hour, the wind being on the starboard bow, and the screw making 30 and 31 revolutions and the paddle 7½. But with the paddles shipping over the water and with the screw 4 feet out of it, the ship being so light, no very useful results could be got at. But we could lay out an endless variety of experiments for the combined screw and paddle. One phenomenon puzzled us for a moment. We know, of course, that the screw and paddle do not stand in each other's way. If the one is running 3,000 horse and the other only 300, the weaker is not helped along by the stronger, but simply follows it up, and adds its 300 to the stronger's 3,000; and it is further known, that the slip of screw and paddle in the water are about equal. Now, for some time the screw was making 32 revolutions or going at the rate of 12.88 knots, while the paddle was only making six turns, or 9.85 knots—i. e. it appears to slip in the water without propelling—four miles an hour less than the screw. Of course, the screw party insisted that their instrument was driving both the ship and the paddle-wheels, but upon examination, the paddle-floats were seen to move an eddy in front, and the water in their wake had an accelerated motion—hence they were exerting power. But the difference of power exerted at the moment by the screw and paddle-engines, was the question—the slip of the paddles at six turns was probably less than half of that at say eight and a half turns, where the speed of the screw and the paddle in knots would have been about equal. After rounding the South Foreland, the wind was a stiff reefing breeze, two points on the starboard bow. The screw moved, on the average, at 26, and the paddle 6½ revolutions—or respectively, at 11.28 and 10.67 knots, up to the time of the explosion. The speed of the vessel therefore could not have been over seven knots an hour, though stated by some of the leading newspapers here to be 21 statute miles, or over 18 knots! These figures are all we have, and may afford a basis for innocent speculation—nothing more. When all the parts are "on the muscle"—when the consumption, evaporation, horse-power, slip, and all other measures of cause and effect are definitely known, the mechanical results of this trip will be forgotten.

The combustion in the boilers was only good because they were lightly worked, and the doors were open much of the time, giving ample air for the consumption of the gases.

The screw-engines are a very solid piece of work—much better built than designed. With 50 feet of vertical space, I have not discovered the necessity of jamming them into the bottom of the hold, especially since upright engines would have made a much better job. As I have before mentioned, the paddle-engines are the most smoothly-working piece of steam machinery I ever saw, considering their size. If the shafts do not break (three were made before one would stand,) no trouble is to be apprehended from them.

The bulkheads of the vessel, about which so much has been said, and which are really the pillars of its strength, were on this occasion in a very unfit state for sea service. Whole plates were removed, or had never been attached, for the purpose of passing through men and machinery while finishing the structure. Supposing the exploding jacket had driven a hole in the ship's bottom, not merely one, but at least several of the compartments would have filled with water, and perhaps in the excitement, and for the lack of discipline, the Great Eastern would have foundered. Common policy, then, without reference to the lives of the crew and passengers, should have suggested every possible means of safety. This neglect was certainly not the fault of the builders or engineers, or of the captain; but it was somebody's fault and can hardly be excused even on the plea that this was not a trial trip, but the mere removal of the vessel to Portland. Hurry in the first experiments with new and great machines has never been found remunerative.

The explosion revealed to those of us who had not seen the vessel in every stage of its progress, a very unfortunate state of things touching her ultimate safety, provided they are not remedied, and your correspondent, though pretty adventurous, will be certain to find out how matters stand before he undertakes an Atlantic voyage. The public has been given to understand that whilst the Great Eastern stood on equal ground with other ships as to accidents by steam, she was wave and fire-proof; that she was too strong to be broken up by the sea; that she had too many separate means of propulsion to go ashore; and that she was built of incombustible iron. Whilst everybody admits that in all human probability she will be proof against shipwreck in all ordinary cases, when she is completed, I think no one can deny that she would probably have been burnt out by fire if left to herself after the late explosion. There was a continuous train of woodwork from the furnace-doors to the great mass of timber composing the whole of many of her floors, and the whole of her state-rooms and ornaments. Suppose that from any of the hundred causes which are always likely to occur, a fire had got headway in the plank floor of the grand saloon, or of the saloon under it, or of a dozen other apartments. Of course the iron bulkheads, if they were complete, would temporarily arrest the flames, but they would have been at last heated through, while the fire could have found a continuous train of fuel all over the ship. The Great Eastern is, doubtless, more nearly fire-proof than any other vessel; but since the smallest basis of suspicion is unfortunate, commercially, and in every other way, why was she not made perfectly fireproof, since this was not only possible but feasible? In the present state of ocean perils, 99 men in 100 would pay a double price if they knew they were to be safe, even at the expense of some comfort, and certainly without insisting upon gorgeous ornamentation, the cost of which would have substituted iron for wooden floors.

The discipline on board was not after the most strict naval fashion. It was well enough as it turned out, but had any such emergency arisen as taking to the boats, I fear that even so thorough and excellent a commander as Capt. HARRISON would have failed to enforce order. Perhaps we cannot blame the Company for having no regular sailors on board, since there were no sails, and since this was not a passenger trip, but as I have so often repeated, and as I hope will be understood, for the Company's sake, the mere shifting of the vessel's position. But the suspicion of disorder should teach an important lesson. In so vast a ship, with so many chances of accident in the execution of orders, the officers, who fare, no doubt, excellent men, should have every facility, which the Company can govern, in their favor.

When these doubtful points are made positively safe, I see no reason why the Great Eastern, even with a higher consumption of fuel than is generally expected, may not become a paying enterprise. She will, of course, roll and pitch in very heavy weather, enough to induce sea-sickness, but in most cases—when ordinary vessels are uncomfortable for either rest or locomotion—she will be steady.

There are only a few incidents of interest to report about the passage of the ship from the Nore up to the time of the explosion. Some of the newspapers seem to think it very triumphant that the vessel did not roll and pitch as much as the little Dover boat that came out to meet us—a length of an eighth of a mile against, perhaps, 150 feet! And it was thought that the American "croakers" would be shut up at this almost miraculous result.

The dinner-table speeches of the day before were in keeping with the general management of the enterprise. Mr. BRUNEL, who did not originate the ship, was glorified, and Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL whose sense and energy were almost the parent of the actual ship, was rather slighted. But Mr RUSSELL'S speech—he was at last called up for decency's sake—was modest and instructive. He traced the history of large vessels, and ascribed the credit to the proper parties, especially to CHAS WOOD, of Glasgow, who, he said, had done more than any other Englishman in the cause of improved ocean navigation. He also acknowledges the merits of the Americans in this department. I am glad to say, incidentally, that Mr. RUSSELL will spend some time in the States after the passage of the Great Eastern.

I want to state one or two more facts about the explosion. The inquest is going on very slowly. "The man who turned the cock" is the unknown slaughtered—as if the heater wouldn't have blown up anyhow, as is already known and admitted among scientific men here. It is said the heater was tested by hydrostatic pressure. Then very likely the test itself precipitated the explosion by altering the form of the shell, and getting it all ready to collapse. Again: after Mr. FAIRBAIRN'S demonstration that the resistance of tubes to collapse is inversely as their length, conceive this six-foot thing to be forty feet long!

The descriptions and grave scientific comments of the English press as to the catastrophe, are, in some particulars, beyond serious criticism. Their mention would be sufficient; but to begin with the "Thunderer." The Times informs us, first, that the pressure, at the moment of explosion, was, if not 1,000, at least 400 lbs. to the square inch, whereas in fact, the inner shell could hardly have withstood a pressure of 50 lbs.; second, that steam of a pressure "approaching 500 lbs., or 600 lbs., has never been so much as heard of among engineers," whereas JACOB PERKINS employed steam years ago, of a pressure of over 1,000 lbs. to the square inch, and Dr. ERNST ALBAN, the author of a standard treatise on the high-pressure engine worked an engine in London at a pressure of 1,000 lbs. per square inch; third, that gunpowder expands 800 times its bulk in explosion, whereas the ratio of expansion is many times greater; fourth, it is implied that the chimney was so hot, before the explosion, as to have decomposed the steam into its constituent gases, whereas the water-casing must, by the very circumstances under which it had been employed, have been full of water, and, indeed, had it not been so, the heat in the grand saloon would have been unendurable long before any decomposition of steam could have occurred, which could hardly go on at less than a white heat; fifth, that decomposed steam, which could have been decomposed only upon plates at least white-hot, recombines in contact with a red-hot plate; sixth, that the force of the explosion was precisely similar to that of 400 cubic feet of gunpowder the amount which would be required to fill the contents of the water-casing. Had 400 cubic feet of gunpowder exploded on board the Great Eastern, no representative of the Times would probably, have been left to report the occurrence; half a ton between her decks would have sent her to the bottom, if experience can be relied on. Again, the stop-cock, so much talked about, is at one time said to lead from the heater to the boiler; at another, "from the stand-pipe into the stoke-hole." It is all the same, we suppose, to the author of the above quoted statement.

Another morning journal avows that the cast iron columns in the grand saloon were bent double and twisted into spiral forms by the force of the explosion. Where is BESSEMER'S steel, after such a test of cast iron?

I beg to present one more selection—it is from a scientific journal—for the enlightenment of our engineers and shipbuilders at home. The perspicuous and technical language which becomes such a paper will be particularly admired; but how can we sufficiently glorify the coolness, rapidity, and accuracy of the eminent engineer who measured the explosive force:

"Of winds she is heedless in her gigantic steam force; over waves she triumphs, riding them without vibration or sensible motion. The fires which blaze within her are controlled even in their worst, their most sudden aspect, by appliances whose instantaneous accommodation and use the newspaper correspondents can hardly celebrate with sufficient praise; and when, to crown all, the master spirit of this vast mass rebels against controlling power, and with one impetuous throb bursts through the iron boundaries that regulate and direct his power, he finds himself still under control, checked in expansion, and confined in mischief, even though he bursts forth with a force of "not less than 22 tons of gunpowder;" for such an eminent engineer, himself a witness of the explosion, declares its force to have been."

The trial trip of the Great Eastern will occur on October 8. The vessel will then start for Portland, United States, (not Portland, Canada, as the Times recently suggested,) if she is found to be in the proper condition.

THE AERONAUTIC MYSTERY.

La Mountain and Haddock Not Yet Heard From—Another Searching Party—Theories and Rumors—A Reward Offered for the Lost Voyagers.

Uncertainty still hangs over the fate of Messrs LA MOUNTAIN and HADDOCK. The Watertown Reformer, (Mr. HADDOCK'S paper,) in its issue of Thursday, unwillingly concedes the loss of the parties though speculating upon the possibility that they may have been carried to a great distance, and alighted safely. It says:

"The ascension was made on the 23d instant. After reaching a few hundred feet it passed off to the northeast, and in about twenty minutes was out of sight. It was seen to pass Philadelphia, eighteen miles distant, fifteen minutes after its departure. The last that has been heard of it, was its passage over the town of Fowler, St. Lawrence County, thirty miles distant, when it seemed to be moving at a rapid rate in the same direction as before. It was supposed that they would come down before dark. They were well clad, and could not suffer from cold. That they had but a small quantity of provisions, say three pounds, but at this season of the year they would not find it difficult to obtain the means of sustaining life. They had from two hundred and fifty to three hundred pounds ballast, which would enable them if they struck the Gulf of St. Lawrence to cross that body of water, and possibly to cross the ocean, if their course lay in that direction."

We announced yesterday the departure of a searching party from Troy in quest of traces of the missing men. The Troy Daily Times, of Friday, states that Mr. A. J. MORRISON, its local reporter, had left for Watertown, where he will immediately place himself at the head of another party, and start for the North Woods. The Times remarks:

"It is our belief that, if by any means the car became detatched, and the occupants thrown out, the balloon was carried many miles above the point where it was last seen. So, if they descended in the North Woods and were disabled, the balloon may have been blown ahead for some distance. If in the woods, which are of vast extent and almost impenetrable, it would be no strange matter if they should be many days in making their way out. Mr. MORRISON has spent a long time in this forest, and being thoroughly familiar with them, has the strongest hopes in the safety of the balloonists. At least, he will not return until he has found some traces of them."

The Troy Budget puts forth the following theory:

"Quite a number of our citizens, as it is reported, saw a balloon pass over our city upon Saturday last; many who saw it, think it a paper balloon, while others strenuously insist that its great size and general appearance renders this impossible. Allowing this to be Mr. LA MOUNTAIN'S balloon—although this is to the highest extent impossible—it by no means follows that we must give up all hope of the aeronauts' safety. The grappling irons used in landing the balloon, are made fast to the concentrating hoop, by the ropes extending over the top of the balloon. When these irons are thrown out, and become attached to one object or another, the strain upon these ropes is immense, especially when the basket contains a large amount of ballast, as is well known the balloon was filled to its greatest extent, and that Mr. LA MOUNTAIN took up a large amount of ballast. It is by no means improbable then, that as they were about to land, the grappling irons being thrown out and attached, the strain was so great that the ropes gave away, and the balloon descended, leaving the aerial voyagers in safety, though so far removed from civilization, as to be unable to make their situation known.

The Troy Times, however, declares that the balloon seen in that city on Thursday was merely a paper toy, manufactured and sent up from Albany. It gives its own theory, as a plausible one, that the car may have been torn from the balloon, and both its occupants still have escaped with life.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Friday, Sept. 30.

Mr. LA MOUNTAIN was seen at Harrisville, Lewis County, passing over the New-York wilderness, still going due east, and at a great elevation. A reward is offered by his brother of $1,000 for the discovery of the aeronauts alive, and $500 for their bodies if dead. A party goes to the woods to-morrow to prosecute the search.

THE KANSAS GOLD.—After all the contradictory reports which have reached us from the mines in Kansas, the fact seems at last settled that there is gold in the mining region, and that various shipments, to the aggregate amount of $104,000, have actually been made. A tabular statement, published in the Leavenworth Daily Times, gives a detailed account of the receipts from May 16, to August 15; from which it appears that the business firms in Denver City and Auroria have received $72,965 from miners, and that of this sum, $45,062 have been shipped to other ports. Neither of the sums named is a year old, and these results of three months' business are regarded as gratifying indications. The express which left Denver City in the middle of September carried away $32,000 in addition; bringing up the total yield to the figure of $104,000.

The following Post-offices have been discontinued in this State. West Eaglington, Green County, and Tusa, Cattaraugus County.

THE EPISCOPAL CONVENTION.

Passage of the Resolution in Favor of Restoring Bishop Onderdonk.

FINAL ADJOURNMENT.

The Episcopal Convention opened at 9 o'clock A. M., yesterday. The morning services were solemnized in the presence of but comparatively few delegates. At a few minutes before 10, Bishop POTTER took his seat, and the informal recess, which had occurred at the close of the Prayers, was interrupted by a call to order.

The dispatch of formal business having occupied some time, a Clerical Delegate moved that the Missionary Committee be instructed, in their next report, to inform the Convention as to the time when the contributions for the respective country missions had begun.

Bishop POTTER said it might as well be asked how long capital sermons in the citizen and garrets of this City had received contributions from the general Church, as to inquire how long the Church had contributed to these missions in the country. This Mission Society made its contributions and its appointments independently. The Missionaries never stopped to inquire what anybody's theological complexion was; and yet there was nearly half the wealth of this diocese withheld from the support of that object which effected so large an amount of good. It would be well to relieve the diocese from the opprobrium from owing debt to its Missionaries, which it was unwilling to pay. They should stand by this work and cancel these debts, at the same time taking measures that no such debt would ever again accrue.

The mover of the resolution, in reply to the Bishop, desired to explain that there had been missions established in the interior in localities which were now thickly settled, and his resolution was a simple inquiry as to the fact whether those missions were not now self-sustaining.

A motion to lay on the table was made.

The question was called for, and the resolution was tabled.

THE CASE OF DR. ONDERDONK DECIDED.

THE BISHOP—The next business in order is the resolution to lay on the table the subject which was under discussion last night at the hour of adjournment.

The reading of the resolution was called for. It was to the following effect:

Resolved, That this Diocesan Convention respectfully request the House of Bishops to exercise, according to the canon in that case made and provided, that remedial action by which the sentence of suspension on the Bishop of New-York shall terminate and cease, or to modify the same so far as to designate a precise period of time, or other specific contingency, on the occurrence of which the sentence shall utterly cease and be of no further force or effect.

Mr. A. W. BRADFORD called for a separate vote—(clerical and lay delegates voting separately.)

In accordance with the Constitution, five calls were declared to be necessary, whereupon more than a dozen gentlemen rose.

The vote to lay on the table was then taken, and resulted thus:

	Yeas.	Nays.
Clergy	33	128
Laity	52	71
Totals	85	209

It was consequently lost by a most emphatic vote.

Judge HOFFMAN then rose and submitted the following amendment:

Resolved, That the remission of the sentence on the Right Rev. Bishop ONDERDONK would be acceptable to this Convention, upon the condition that the restrictions upon the exercise and administration of Episcopal office in this Diocese, as set forth in his letter to the Right Rev. Bishop POTTER, be annexed to the same, or that such restrictions, relating to the exercise of such powers, not inconsistent to the form of such letter, shall be such as the House of Bishops shall decree proper.

The honorable gentleman, in supporting his amendment, said that it was based substantially on the explicit avowal of Bishop ONDERDONK in his letter, amounting virtually to a resignation of his office and all his powers into the hands of the Provisional Bishop. He could see no legal difficulty in the way of such a resignation. He thought that this amendment was consistent with all notions of the exercise of Christian mercy towards Bishop ONDERDONK, and would do justice to their appreciation of their beloved Provisional Bishop, whilst it was in opposition to no canonical requirement.

The Hon. LUTHER BRADISH regretted that the whole matter had not been laid on the table. However objectionable the original resolution was, he was forced to avow that the amendment was still less deserving of support. He denied that there was any legal warrant for the principle assumed in it. If the resolution were adopted and the sentence revoked, the suspended Bishop was instantly restored to his high office and functions, and how, by any preconcerted arrangement, could his hands be tied up. As a Bishop he must administer the duties of his office. True, as Diocesan he might legally delegate a portion of his powers to the Provisional Bishop, but he had no right, as a Bishop, to delegate them all. There might be dozens of Churches which would demand the ministrations of Bishop ONDERDONK, and he could not legally refuse. He (the Ex-Governor) believed that this measure was illegal, highly deceptive and impracticable.

The Rev. Mr. MCVICKAR, of Irving, thought that he could meet the wishes of the Convention by offering the following as an amendment to the amendment:

Resolved, That the Rt. Rev. the Provisional Bishop of this Diocese be requested to lay before the House of Bishops the papers upon which the subject of the restoration of Bishop ONDERDONK, to wit, a memorial to the House of Bishops from said Bishop, and an ante-dated letter to said Provisional Bishop, which have been read before this Convention, for such action as the House of Bishops may deem best.

This amendment elicited a discussion as to whether these papers (which, though they had been read before the convention, were not in its possession) could be acted on as the subject matter of a vote by the Convention.

Rev. E. M. MONTGOMERY rose, but was temporarily silenced by cries of "Question." He proceeded, however, and in a very singular appeal, took ground against the adoption of any resolution in favor of the restoration of Dr. ONDERDONK. He called for justice as well as mercy; he called on them to consider the honor of the church not less than the penitence of the sinner. He had invariably refused to sign the memorial to the House of Bishops, and he never would sign it.

Loud calls for question were again heard.

But, notwithstanding this exhibition of the general will, the Rev. Dr. HARRIS rose, and said the Convention had been taken by surprise in this matter, because it had been generally understood that this unhappy Bishop would never be withdrawn from his obscurity. The view originally taken in regard to the Bishop's suspension was that it was tantamount to degradation, and that the latter sentence was not imposed because its effect would be to deprive the Bishop of all means of support.

The Rev. Dr. was prematurely obliged to conclude his remarks by impatient cries of "Order, order," and "Question."

The Bishop said he deeply regretted this discussion, but, as he had allowed gentlemen all latitude on the previous night, he felt bound to keep the question still open.

The Rev. Dr. HENRY, despite renewed cries of question, claimed a brief hearing, not having raised his voice in the Convention for ten years. He agreed substantially with the views of Mr. BRADISH, and seemed to think there was a difficulty as to the right of the Convention to make any disposition of the papers, because he did not know that the Convention had possession of them.

A Delegate stated that the only way in which he conceived it possible to arrange the matter was, to make it, as a condition of the adoption of the resolution, a positive obligation on the part of Bishop ONDERDONK to resign immediately after the remission of his sentence.

Gov. BRADISH thought it would not be competent for the Bishops to affix any such absolute condition to their vote of remission; though they might define his powers as a Bishop. The papers were not in the custody of the Convention, and if they were, even, the house should pause before it undertook to instruct the Provisional Bishop to present them to the House of Bishops, because such a course would virtually be a censure of that House, inasmuch as it would imply a want of confidence in its action, being nothing less than a dictation as to the course the Bishops should pursue.

Dr. HAWKS suggested that the jurisdiction had never been taken from Dr. ONDERDONK, and that if restored, it would be a restoration to him of the power to perform episcopal acts and functions. Now, as regarded the extent to which he might do that, he (Dr. H.) claimed that by the law which entitled the House of Bishops to show clemency at all, it was perfectly right for them to name the conditions on which it should be shown. The only final action that was good for anything must be done by the Bishops. He should wish, when the matter came to be decided, to let the solemn responsibility rest upon them. Let the Bishops themselves settle this question, and doubtless they would adopt the safeguards which had been here suggested.

Judge HOFFMAN said that two suggestions had been made, one with regard to the papers, whether they were in possession of this House or not; and it would be noticed that in the amendment which he had proposed he had referred to but one paper as having been read before the House, namely the letter of Bishop ONDERDONK to the Provisional Bishop. He understood that the documents laid before the House were meant for its guidance, and he was yet to understand that they were not entitled to their use. He would amend his proposed amendment by omitting that first part which referred to Bishop ONDERDONK'S letter, and retaining the second part. Bishop ONDERDONK was de jure Bishop. He was not degraded, but was suspended of all or any of the Episcopal functions, including the administrative jurisdiction of the Diocese, and everything which he could do as a Bishop of God's Church when the House of Bishops remove that sentence. According to the canon of 1856, they might, in his judgment, impose any limitations or conditions on Bishop ONDERDONK they might think proper. They could not, it was true, restore one day and affix a penalty the next, but they could say, "We restore you on certain conditions, which you may either accept or refuse; if you refuse you cannot be restored." The Church had the power of remission, and without the aid of any canonical regulation whatever. Where the Church had lodged the power of punishment, there the power of remission existed. That power had been limited only to cases of degradation, showing that in other cases the power of remission still remained with the Bishops, and the canon of '47 was but a reassertion of a settled principle of Ecclesiastical Law.

Ex-Gov. BRADISH—I do not allege that the Bishops have the power to affix any conditions to a resignation, for that is a legal right and act, but I do think that they would not have power to fix conditions which would require a man to make over the entire powers of his office and his function, because, being still a Bishop, he could not make them over.

A Delegate moved the indefinite postponement of the whole subject. The motion was a marked failure.

Dr. TURNER asked the Rev. Mr. MCVICKAR to withdraw his amendment.

Mr. MCVICKAR said that by withdrawing those words to the sense of the resolutions to which he had referred his amendment it would appear as a simple case of want of confidence in them. He would not consent, therefore, to withdraw his amendment.

His amendment, as already given, was put. Rev. Dr. TAYLOR said this whole matter was, in his view, most unconscionable to the Bishop. Bishop in the full of his unstained and exalted position as he is. (Dr. T.) entered his solemn protest against the thing as brought, distinctly and emphatically, and hoped the Provisional Bishop's name would be stricken off that resolution (Mr. McVICKAR'S.)

Mr. McVICKAR'S amendment was put to the house, and carried almost without a dissenting voice.

Dr. TURNER then accepted Judge HOFFMAN'S amendment as a substitute for his own resolution.

Mr. S. S. RUGGLES proposed an oral amendment to the effect that Judge HOFFMAN'S be so modified as to make the condition that Bishop ONDERDONK, immediately after his restoration, should place his resignation in the hands of the Clerk of the House of Bishops.

Bishop POTTER—(rising)—May I appeal to the gentlemen to withdraw that amendment.

Mr. RUGGLES—If the Bishop insists, for I should not wish to disturb the good feeling of the Convention. I wish, however, that the Bishop would explain his reason for desiring its withdrawal.

Bishop POTTER—(visibly affected)—My reasons are very simple; I don't like to state them. I am continually hampered and restrained about things which I cannot rightly say because of a consideration of what will be my duties in another place. I cannot suffer that this Convention, over whose chair person, of whom so much has been said, once presided, should send with me the favor which they ask to have conferred, accompanied by a request for his resignation. Do not stigmatise him by any expression of that kind. I confess to you, gentlemen, I have been restrained by friends from saying what I would have liked to say to you, and I am not going to say it now. I do feel a desire to say, first of all, that when I sent into the Committee that had called on me at the last moment, my objections to the arrangements which they were preparing, those objections were directed simply to the essential character of that arrangement. I did not wish to put any veto on the Church in this diocese if they desired to approach the House of Bishops. I simply wished to express my opinion that that measure was fraught with evil. I tell you that that is a mischievous movement to attempt to make. An arrangement based on that letter which was addressed to me, you will find hereafter to be a mischievous arrangement, disturbing the peace of this diocese, and more embarrassing to me than any other thing you could do. Nothing do I care for myself. I wish to make no personal matter of an affair of this kind. Nothing for persons. Nothing for individual pride. Everything for right; everything for the Church, and nothing for the individual's self. I would rather, gentlemen, that you should restore that individual to jurisdiction untrammeled, and with no view of its being returned to me hereafter. I would rather you would not expose him to that continual sense of degradation than to place me in the situation which you contemplated in that letter. It gives me one place which you take from another. You send me to that unenviable man, who has been suffering for fifteen years, to tell me to dole out his task. Can I look in his eyes and not be overcome? I am to go to him to consult with him; is there any doubt where the controlling influence is to come from? He is a venerable man; I inferior both in age and station. You load me with the duties of a principality, and you embarrass me by making me a subordinate. You make two centres. And do you know the fate of things in this diocese? Do you know the state of feeling in this diocese? One party would rally round one centre; another would rally round another. You would create a state of things in this diocese worse than any you ever saw in the worst days of the conflicts in reard to the measures that have gone before us. I say again, I cannot pass in this place upon the great measure under consideration. That must go elsewhere. I dare say many of you may have observed that on the first day of this Convention I took no part in the morning services. I wish to be alone. I wish to be with myself, and with Him who knows all hearts, and meies out justice and mercy. I wished, if possible, to find out my duty and to do it, and my spirit was bowed down within me at the thought that this man was to pass by another General Convention; that he was to be elevated to heaven by his friends, and cast down as from a rock, in humiliation, and overpowered by difficulties and disappointments. Every step of my way, as I attempt to address myself to you, is hedged round with difficulties. I know how liable I am to be misconstrued, and I desire to say to those gentlemen who originated this movement that, without meaning to reflect on them, I feel grieved that they had not an opportunity of seeing me earlier. I am sorry that they thought it necessary to wait, when one day would carry them to me. I was sorry that they thought it necessary to wait till they got sixty names of my brethren to lay before me as a sort of mild persuasion nay, something which to some would have looked like an attempt to intimidate. If I go to Richmond, and I would much rather stay away, they will find in me no enemy. I do not know what discussion will open. I do not know what will be the result of evidence and examination. May be I am to act there as a judge, and I cannot say beforehand how I shall decide a case that has not yet been presented to me, but I say I am conscious in myself that I have no feeling but what is fair; I care nothing for personal position, but I do care much for all those things which tend to harm, and for all those things which tend to efficiency of administration.

Whilst the effect which this address had obviously produced was still unabated, Gov. KING rose and in a loud voice moved that the Convention adjourn sine die. This was met by a series of delays, and created some wrangling as to the mode in which the vote should be taken.

When the question was finally put, and the votes counted, they stood as follows:

	Ayes.	Noes.	Majority against Adjournment.
Clergy	48	92	44
Laity	59	50	—
Total	107	141	44

The Rev. Dr. VINTON then said that the remarks of the President were doubtless entitled to great respect. He had always a right to utter sentiments in that capacity which no one could gainsay. He argued with the Provisional Bishop in every point of difficulty he had presented. He would rather he had never been consulted, but left entirely to his own action in the House of Bishops. But every member had also a right to express his opinion. The resolution of Judge Hoffman merely expressed the opinions of the House, and it had to be passed upon by a higher authority. He insisted that the resolution did not dictate to the House of Bishops, but simply showed them what would satisfy the Convention. The objections of the Chair therefore had no weight and might all be overruled in the House. He now respectfully requested that a vote be taken on the matter without debate.

This was followed by tumultuous cries of "Question!" a variety of motions and counter-motions were made amidst great confusion, which the Bishop endeavored to subdue by reminding the Convention that they were in the House of God, and at length, after all the hubbub, the resolution of Judge HOFFMAN was amended by Mr. C. E. DAVIS, of Fishkill, was carried by the subjoined vote:

	Ayes.	Noes.	Majority for resolution.
Clergy	145	16	129
Laity (2 divided)	75	46	29
Total	220	62	158

The resolution reads thus:

Resolved, That the remission of the sentence of the Rt. Rev. Bishop ONDERDONK would be acceptable to this Convention, upon the condition that the restriction upon the exercise of episcopal powers and offices within the diocese, set forth in his letter to the Rt. Rev. Bishop POTTER, laid before this Convention be annexed to the same, or such restrictions relative to the exercise of such powers as the House of Bishops may deem fit.

The Convention adjourned till 7 o'clock in the evening, when they again met and transacted all the remaining business, including the collection to the extent of several hundred dollars for the missionary establishment. The closing prayers were said by the Bishop of Indiana, and Bishop POTTER pronounced the benediction.

The Memorial of Bishop Onderdonk.

Subjoined is Bishop ONDERDONK'S memorial to the House of Bishops, for restoration to Episcopal functions as Bishop of New-York, which was submitted on Thursday night by Dr. VINTON.

To the Right Reverend the Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America:

BRETHREN: Fourteen years have elapsed since, by the Canonical action of an Ecclesiastical Court of Bishops, I was suspended from the office of a Bishop and from all the functions of the sacred ministry. To that sentence I have quietly submitted, and now present myself before you, respectfully to ask for its remission. In making this request, I deem it right, before God and man, frankly and truly to lay before you the present state of my feelings, and the grounds on which I ask the removal of the penalties under which I suffer.

In the excitement of feeling consequent on my trial and sentence, it was natural that [illegible] was both mine that in the more [illegible] of calm Christian judgment would afterwards be regretted and disclaimed. You will, however, [illegible] ren, permit me to say that deeply aggrieved as I felt at the time, by a sentence which I believe as to my daily service, I have no recollection of [illegible] vered to justify my own view by attributing to my brethren unworthy motives. If the decision of [illegible] them have been hurt by the supposition that I [illegible] any way done them injustice, I sincerely [illegible] which may have been dictated to [illegible] structions, I have long since forgiven [illegible] believed, the honor of the Church by the [illegible] tion of discipline where they conceived [illegible] it was deserved. I should very little deserve [illegible] what I utter at such hours, if I were [illegible] to acknowledge all the crimes that have been [illegible] to me by my enemies, and to profess [illegible] of which I am really not guilty. I desire [illegible] purchase even restoration at the price of [illegible] and hypocrisy.

And yet, I presume not to say that I [illegible] exempt from human infirmity, and in the [illegible] fections to which the lapse of time has [illegible] acknowledge that I cannot but [illegible] been unintentional and occasioned [illegible] way that I cannot but [illegible] of my Charleston, and Brooklyn [illegible] given of [illegible]

But by my faith, cast in the [illegible] human, I have been [illegible] our Blessed Lord [illegible] fellow-Christian, I am [illegible] of wickedness, I am [illegible] tion on this account [illegible] humble myself in penitence before God [illegible] can say truly, and I thank God for it, [illegible] without any reference to man or his [illegible] have long endeavored to live in a [illegible] penitence for all my sins, [illegible] have daily sought forgiveness for [illegible] mercy of God, for the sake of His Son [illegible]

I have borne the sentence [illegible] bitter anguish, I confess, and a [illegible] infliction, but without murmuring or [illegible] with constant and earnest prayer for the [illegible] my sins, and grace for [illegible] this repentance on the ground [illegible] in but One Judge. Of its effect on my [illegible] there are those who can speak with [illegible] than myself. And herein I am [illegible] to those who have been generally [illegible] friends, but to those also of a different [illegible] who have known me well, I honestly [illegible] witness that, save above the sentence has been [illegible] my life has been quiet, my doctrine [illegible] my conduct as a member of Christ's Church [illegible] to reproach.

I now beg, Christian brethren, the mercy of a removal of my sentence. So far as the honor of the Church is involved, I have hoped that I would not it simply vindicated by fourteen years of [illegible] borne in silence and seclusion, and that [illegible] knowing the object of ecclesiastical [illegible] reformatory and not vindictive, would [ill

THE AMERICAN SQUADRON IN CHINA.

Official Dispatch from Com. Tattnall at the Mouth of the Pei-ho—The Part Played by the Americans—Our Losses.

We find in the Washington Constitution the subjoined letter from the Commander of the American squadron in the Chinese waters, describing the British disaster at the Pei-ho, and the participation of our vessels in the affair. The letter is of the highest importance.

U. S. Steam Sloop-of-War Toyatan, Flag-ship, East India Squadron, Off Pei-ho River, July 4, 1859.

SIR: The last despatch which I had the honor to send was reported this ship, in company with the Toey-wan, at sea, off the Yang-tse, on her way to the Pei-ho, with our minister to China, and his suite on board. That gentleman has communicated to the Government the result of his intercourse with the Chinese Commissioners at Shanghai. I shall only refer, therefore, to so much as is necessary to your understanding the circumstances which placed us in a very unpleasant position on our arrival at the Pei-ho and produced the unexpected results.

The Chinese Commissioners were those with whom the Minister, Mr. Reed, concluded the treaty last year at Tien-tsin, and with whom he subsequently exchanged the ratifications, at Shanghai, where they have resided since. In the interchange of visits between these Commissioners and Mr. Ward, the latter was accompanied by a number of the officers and thirty marines, this being not only suited to the dignity of Mr. Ward, but intended as a compliment to the Chinese Commissioners, to whom Mr. Ward wished to extend the greatest consideration. It was understood from them that he was on his way to Peking to exchange the treaties, which it was obligatory upon both parties to do on or before the 6th June, the time now at hand. They replied that, having agreed upon a place, they must be allowed to exchange them; that they did not reach Peking from Shanghai in less than thirty days; and that, by agreement with Lord Elgin, the British Ambassador, they were expecting to stay at Shanghai until the arrival of the Russian Minister, Mr. Bacon. Mr. Ward then urged that, on the ground that the treaty was at Peking, our treaty at Shanghai; that he should not, on his arrival a day or two after, be able to hold official intercourse with the Emperor; and that, if he should not reach Peking from Shanghai in less than thirty days, and that, by agreement with Lord Elgin, the British Ambassador, they were expecting to stay at Shanghai until the arrival of the Russian Minister, Mr. Bacon,

ABBOTT'S MONARCHIES OF CONTINENTAL EUROPE.

Second Book of the Series ready Saturday, Oct. 1.

THE EMPIRE OF RUSSIA, FROM THE REMOTEST PERIOD TO THE PRESENT TIME. By John S. C. Abbott. With Portrait on steel of Peter the Great. Crown octavo, 528 pp., cloth. Price $1 50.

The author in his preface says:

"The world is now too busy to read voluminous history. The interminable details of battle and the petty intrigues of courtiers and mistresses have lost their interest. In this volume it has been our object to trace perspicuously the path which Russia has trod from earliest infancy to the present hour. The career of this Empire has been so wild and wonderful that the historian can have no occasion to call in the aid of fancy for the embellishment of his narrative. * * In writing these Histories of the Monarchies of Continental Europe, the author has no wish to conceal his abhorrence of aristocratic usurpation. Believing in the universal brotherhood of man, his sympathies are most cordially with the oppressed masses. If the people are weak and debased, the claim is only the more urgent upon the powerful and the wise to act the part of elder brothers, holding out the helping hand to those who have fallen. The author feels grateful for the reception which the first number of this series—the Empire of Austria—has received from the American public. He hopes that this volume will not prove less interesting or instructive."

ALSO,

THE EMPIRE OF AUSTRIA; ITS RISE AND PRESENT POWER. By John S. C. Abbott. With steel Portrait. Crown octavo, 520 pp., cloth, $1 50.

This is the first of the series of "The Monarchies of Continental Europe."

From the New-York Independent.

Mr. Abbott has originated a new method of history.

HOTELS.

FIFTH-AVENUE HOTEL,
ON THE AV.,
AT THE INTERSECTION OF BROADWAY, OPPOSITE MADISON-SQUARE, NEW-YORK.

TO BE OPENED AUG. 22, 1859.

This location is the most desirable of any in this great Metropolis, being healthy, fashionable, and central in the City, and very near and convenient to the Hudson River and Boston Railroad depots.

The entire arrangements of the establishment are the result of mature study and experience, and render it the most complete and comfortable hotel in the world.

All the improvements that comfort and convenience have suggested have been introduced.

Every precaution has been taken, during construction, to secure the positive safety of guests from the dangers of conflagration. Subdivision double brick walls extend from the rock foundation to the roof. All of the floors are double, and are separated by a layer of cement, making the entire structure fireproof.

Among other important improvements, in addition to the usual stairways, a vertical railway is nearly completed to convey guests from the first to upper floors, upon a plan which admits of no possibility of accident.

Long, spacious and continuous corridors, forming a promenade of eight hundred feet upon each of the six stories, give light and air, in the highest degree, to every apartment.

A liberal space has been appropriated to public drawing-rooms and parlors, connecting which and the dining-rooms there is a grand promenade hall. Suites of spacious parlors, chambers and dressing-rooms, with all the modern conveniences, have been especially designed for the comfort of families, traveling parties and single gentlemen.

An exchange, containing the journals of the day, and all the conveniences for commercial intercourse and business, has been added to the many other features of the Hotel, and there is a telegraph office connecting with all parts of the country.

Billiard and chess rooms of the most approved style and appointments, are provided for the use of guests and the public.

The furniture, and every article of use in the establishment has been expressly designed and manufactured for the Fifth-Avenue Hotel.

All communications for apartments, or upon any business connected with the house, please direct to "Fifth-Avenue Hotel," in order to insure immediate attention.

The entire organization of this Hotel has been under the direction of Mr. Paran Stevens, Proprietor of Revere and Tremont Houses in Boston, and Battle and Point Clear Houses in Mobile, and will be conducted by

Your obedient servants,

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The information which the Department of State has received from Costa Rica, completes the unfinished story of revolution heretofore received. The momentary government which assumed the seat of the ejected MORA, has given away to a more settled organization, of which Señor MONTEAGELA remains the chief, with VICENTE DE AGUILAR, JULIAN VOLIO, and JESUS JIMENEZ, as his cabinet officers. This administration is represented to be strong not only in the wealth, talent, and personal popularity of the gentlemen comprising it, but in the esteem of the larger number of the people. The latter circumstance is evinced by addresses forwarded to the President from nearly every quarter of the State felicitating him and the public upon the fortunate change, and hailing the new order of things with enthusiasm. President MONTEAGELA had issued an inaugural proclamation upon assuming office. In this paper, the brevity of which is its conspicuous merit, he responds to the popular voice of congratulation, pointing the general gratitude to Señor SALAZAR and BLANCO, whose patriotic energy had saved the Republic. Several decrees had been issued as the basis of political reconstruction. Costa Ricans exiled by MORA are recalled; an election of deputies to a National Assembly is ordered. This action and the general temper and drift of the new Government is represented as meeting the approval of the Washington Cabinet.

A dispatch from New-Orleans gives us later Mexican advices. Gen. JUAREZ, with six thousand men, was making preparations to march on the Capital. The report of DECOLLADO's defeat at Leon by Gen. WOLL is confirmed, though the victory of the latter seems to have been very disastrous to himself. In view of the proposed employment of American volunteers by the Liberals, MIRAMON had republished SANTA ANNA's old decree, issued in 1843, forbidding foreigners entering the country with arms and designs of invasion, under pain of death.

Dates from Havana to the 17th ult., are received by the Philadelphia at New-Orleans. The news is of minor importance. A rumor was prevalent that Gen. CONCHA would be relieved very shortly of his post as Captain-General; but as we receive no announcement directly from Madrid, we may accept the report with distrust.

On the 10th ult. the presentation to the Pimos and Maricopa Indians, authorized by the last Congress, was made by Lieut. MOWRY. The presentation consisted of about two thousand farming implements, several thousand pounds of barley and other grain for seed, and several thousand yards of cloth, calico shirts, tobacco and beads. Between four and five thousand Indians were present, who expressed great satisfaction at the reception of the presents.

The Protestant Episcopal Convention of the Diocese of New-York met again yesterday morning, and decided, after an elaborate and to some extent a noisy debate, to ask of the House of Bishops, at the next General Convention, the remission of the sentence of suspension which, fifteen years ago, condemned Bishop ONDERDONK to retirement. This remission, if granted, will restore the Bishop to his Episcopal functions, but, if the wishes of this Convention be complied with, the whole administrative jurisdiction of the diocese will remain in the hands of the present Provisional Bishop, the Right Rev. Dr. POTTER. The measure met with ardent opposition, and was passed in the face of a remonstrance from Dr. POTTER himself. The Convention adjourned finally at the close of its evening session.

The boiler in the cellar of the Girard House, at the corner of West Broadway and Chambers-street, exploded early yesterday morning, killing one man instantly and severely scalding another, besides doing considerable injury to the building. The name of the victim is JOHN O'CONNER, a plumber, who had been engaged all night in repairing the water pipes connected with the boiler. It is supposed that he turned the faucet of the feed-pipe, thus cutting off the water, and that he omitted to turn it on again, so causing the explosion. The injured man was JOHN COLLINS, who was employed as fireman. He lies in the City Hospital in a critical condition. An investigation will be held to-day, when the remains of the boiler will be examined by engineers and machinists, and the cause of the explosion will probably be discovered.

The argument of counsel in the case of ELLA BURNS was brought to a close, and a decision is expected to-day. The evidence on behalf of the defendants in the West Washington Market case was taken. It consisted mainly of an attempt to show that the extension of the land in that part of the river bank was caused more or less by alluvium from the stream.

The Police Commissioners met at 2 P. M.; dismissed one Policeman from the Department; accepted the resignation of another; prescribed the punishment of another, who had violated the rules; acquitted Dr. A. S. JOHNS, tried on a charge of receiving a bribe; appointed a Committee to submit at the next meeting a list of poll clerks for the next election, and adopted a resolution declaring that it was proper that one Democrat and one Republican should be on the list for each District.

The Stock Market closed dull yesterday afternoon. With the exception of Galena Shares, the Western Stocks were lower, and New-York Central left off at a decline of ¼@½ per cent. The rates for Money are steady, with a fair demand and a good supply. The Foreign Exchanges are a fraction easier. The German steamers sailing this morning will take about $900,000 in Gold and Silver.

The sales of Cotton reached 1,250 bales at a shade lower prices. Flour was less active, and partially cheaper. Choice lots of Winter Wheat were scarce and wanted. Other kinds were plenty and heavy. Corn was unsettled. Rye was in fair demand, partly for the South. Oats were less sought after. Coffee, Metals, Naval Stores, Oils, Rices and Seeds were quiet. A moderate demand prevailed for Provisions. Pork and Beef favored buyers. Cheese, Fish, Hay, Hops, Molasses, Sugars, Teas, Tobacco, and Whisky were in good request. The freight engagements were moderate.

A BISHOP WITHOUT A CHURCH.—The Diocesan Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of New-York yesterday passed a resolution recommending the House of Bishops to "take remedial action" with regard to the case of Bishop ONDERDONK, of this Diocese, suspended in his office thirteen years ago for alleged misconduct of a highly immoral and disgraceful character. The case is hardly susceptible of treatment by the secular Press, since both at the time of the original suspension, and now in the virtual repeal of the sentence then passed, the ecclesiastical bodies which have taken action in the premises seem to have been bent on preventing their right hand from sharing in the deeds of the left, to such a degree as to make their proceedings highly [illegible] the extra-ecclesiastical mind. When [illegible] condemned to [illegible] was certainly explained to be any punishment strictly, [illegible] modification. Now that he has been restored to the favor and faith of his flock, the Bishop is [illegible] to be reinstated, not into the discharge of his Episcopal functions, but merely into the enjoyment of his Episcopal character.

That the unfortunate prelate, whose story has been thus revived, may well have atoned for any faults which were committed by him in the heyday of his strength and social position, by the painful years which have elapsed since his name was made a byword in the streets, may very well be, and we should be very sorry to question the humanity and the piety of those who have been foremost in pleading for the remission of the burden imposed upon him. But it is not the less to be regretted, in the general interest of good morals and public order, that so sorry a scandal should have been once more brought before the general mind, and we can only trust, for the sake of the great and respectable religious body concerned, that, as the Bishop who now prays to be restored to them only asks to be restored as a Bishop in name, and not in fact, the Church itself may take no harm in public estimation or practical influence from this strange convulsion and more strange revulsion in its hierarchical history.

The Americans in China.

While our English cousins are expending themselves in cordial ecstacies over the sympathy shown their soldiers and their sailors, and the "meteor flag," by our naval commander in the China seas, a few thoughtless American journalists, recognizing the extreme impropriety of anything like a decisive partisanship of our forces in behalf of the Anglo-French operations against the Chinese Government, have hastily rushed into a vehement denunciation of Mr. Minister WARD, and of Com. TATTNALL, for their alleged "violation of neutrality," in the recent affair at the mouth of the Pei-ho River. Our readers, after perusing the clear and graphic account which Com. TATTNALL has given of the whole affair to our Government, and which we this morning publish, will agree with us, we think, that neither the ecstacies nor the denunciation have been fairly earned. We have already expressed our conviction that the course of the British Envoy in China, and of his "sword of flesh" the British Admiral, in forcing the passage of the Pei-ho, must be ultimately condemned by the calmer second thought of the English home authorities and of the English people. The angry "Thunderer" of London has already hinted a strong suspicion of the like nature in admitting that, whatever must be said of the Court of Peking, the Manichoos who fought in the forts of the Pei-ho must be acquitted of deliberate treachery. As the case stands on the explicit showing of the British functionaries themselves, they were requested by the delegates of the Chinese Emperor to proceed to Peking by a particular way which was pointed out to them. Commander TATTNALL echoes the conviction of the British Envoy that this request of the Mandarins was merely intended to make access to Peking virtually impossible for two or three months longer. However this may be, we may very well ask by what canon of natural or civil law the representatives of Christendom were warranted in their emphatic determination to treat these propositions as an evasion of obligations, of which the propositions themselves admitted the existence and the importance. And we may reasonably doubt whether similar palterings and hesitations on the part of any Christian Power, however small and insignificant, would have provoked a like explosion of military and imperious diplomacy. This doubt of ours is strengthened by the attitude of our own Minister, Mr. WARD, in relation to the Mandarins and their excuses. Relying upon the intrinsic strength of his position, and upon the power of the United States to compel respect for its own rights, after it had exhausted all the resources of respect for the rights of China, Mr. WARD, as Com. TATTNALL tells us, waived certain positive stipulations of our treaty, that nothing might be wanting on our part to a fair and honorable transaction of our affairs with the proud and preposterous rulers of the Central Flowery Kingdom. In the like spirit, Mr. WARD seems to have been prepared to acquiesce in the proposition, which the British Envoy thought intolerable, that the foreign Ministers should proceed further to the North and reach Peking by a different course from that guarded by the now famous forts of the Pei-ho.

These circumstances should suffice to prove that the American officials in China were very far from being governed by the same defiant and overbearing temper which actuated the allied representatives, and especially the British Envoy. Now, we Americans have not, perhaps, the best reputation in the world, not even with our British kinsmen themselves, for humility, patience and forbearance. What our Envoy, therefore, thought compatible with his dignity and our own, need hardly have revolted the self-respect even of a Briton and a Bruce. We cannot, therefore, accept the felicitations of our English friends as an absolute identification with themselves in their actual Chinese policy. We may distrust the Mandarins as much as they do, for we have as much reason as they to distrust that false and subtle order of Orientals. But we cannot possibly indorse the notion that a Chinese Mandarin is merely something to be kicked; or that absolutely different measures of diplomacy must be meted out to the monosyllabic children of the sun and moon, and to the nations of Europe. At the same time we can see nothing in the conduct of our American Envoy unworthy of his neutral attitude, and certainly nothing in the behavior of the gallant Commodore TATTNALL unbecoming a true-hearted American sailor. The Minister gave a cordial cooperation to his Christian colleagues up to the point at which it became necessary for him to withdraw the American flag from hostilities to which the American Government had distinctly declined to commit it. In this he simply did his duty as a member of the great modern Commonwealth of nations. The Commodore accepted a great service, and perhaps the salvation of all under his charge, from his compeers of the English Navy; and this service he repaid with a frank and generous overflowing of the heart, which marks him for a man of the truest and safest instincts. So far as yet appears, therefore, we do not hesitate to express our firm belief that the Americans in China, as well civilians as men of war, have borne themselves in this disastrous upshot of a year's negotiations, with equal good sense and generosity, with equal clear-sightedness of policy and warm-heartedness of impulse.

[illegible] the Great Eastern gives the public, to-day, some very interesting and important facts concerning the structure of this vessel and the points established by her recent trip from the Thames to Portland. He writes, as his readers will readily see, more for the instruction than for the amusement of the public;—and while his letters may consequently lack something of the glow and factitious interest which belongs to most of the exaggerated descriptions that have been given of the vessel and her performances, they will furnish, we venture to say, a much better basis of forming a reliable judgment concerning the character and prospects of this new and important experiment in Ocean Steam Navigation than has hitherto been afforded the public on either side of the Atlantic.

The late trip, according to our correspondent, furnishes no basis whatever for judging of the speed or the economy of the Great Eastern. He gives facts and figures, both from his own observation and from Mr. SCOTT RUSSELL's tables, to show that the quickest time made was thirteen nautical miles an hour,—when both wind and tide were with the vessel; and that the next day, with breeze and sea against her, her speed was about seven. The steering of the vessel proved to be perfectly successful,—though it does not seem quite certain that the means provided for steering will prove adequate in a heavy sea. The hoisting of the anchor was a slow operation, and more conveniences will probably be found necessary for handling the heavy chain cables. The bulkheads, which have been represented as insuring the perfect safety of the vessel, were really in a very unfit state for going to sea;—and the explosion revealed the fact that under certain contingencies the vessel might founder, and that she is not as yet by any means fire-proof. The cause of the explosion is stated to have been,—not the turning of a stop-cock, as is represented,—but the faulty construction of the heater.

The boldness of these criticisms, and their contrast with what has generally been written of the Great Eastern in other quarters, render it proper for us to say that our correspondent is an American Civil Engineer, of thorough education and high professional accomplishment;—and that he has had a practical experience, as well as scientific training, in the subject of which he writes. We have assigned him to this service because the vast importance of the experiment to the practical science and the commercial interests of this country, as well as of the world, seemed to require—not the mere graphic narrative of a literary man, but the careful study and intelligent report of an Engineer. He will remain with the Great Eastern until she is ready to take her departure, and will then come with her to the United States. Our readers may rely, therefore, upon receiving through the TIMES full and intelligent reports of her performances.

The American Party.

A little more than a week ago, in commenting upon the proceedings of the American Convention at Utica, we expressed our belief that they betrayed a profound and melancholy consciousness that the party, as a party, "had survived all its usefulness and most of its strength;" that it had nominated a ticket selected half from the Republicans and the other half from the Democrats, for the simple reason that if they had nominated candidates of their own, they knew that not one of them would have been elected. We believed then, and believe still, that they refused to go into the field under their own flag, owing to a dismal foreboding that they would receive more kicks than plunder, and thus afford the world palpable demonstration that they were shorn of their strength. "A Delegate," who attended the Convention, whose letter we published yesterday, assures us that we are mistaken; that the division of the ticket among the two other parties instead of indicating consciousness of weakness, was the result of deliberate policy; that in framing it, the convention was simply choosing the best means of carrying out the objects, which the party has now most at heart. What these objects are the Delegate sets forth seriatim. As nearly as we can gather from his statement of them they are two in number. First, to restore the order of things which existed before what he calls "the disgraceful Negro stampede of 1856;"—or in other words, to wipe out the Republican and the Fire-eating Parties, and restore universal harmony. Secondly, to save the State Canals from an enormous Central Corporation with "slow coils," "voracious jaws," &c.

In other words, the extinction of the "negro agitation," and preservation of the State Canals, required that the American ticket should this year be composed half of names taken from the Democratic ticket, and half from the Republican ticket.

All this reminds us somewhat of the Irish sailor, who, when displaying his agility in the rigging, finally stood on the masthead, lost his balance, fell on the deck and broke his leg. Some of his shipmates were disposed to laugh over his misfortune, but he stoutly maintained that it was all done purposely—the fall and the fracture, as well as the rest—and challenged the whole crew to do as much. Possibly the purpose for which the American party was formed was the promotion of national peace and the care of the Canals; but nobody ever thought so till now. Perhaps what we innocently consider a fall from the masthead and a smashing of the lower extremities, is in reality part of the performance, but it is very hard to believe it. If our memory serves us aright, (and we think we may appeal to the majority of our readers for a confirmation of our souvenir,) the great end and aim of the great American Party was originally the reform of the naturalization laws, the restriction of public offices to natives of the country, and the erection of barriers against Pius IX., his heirs and successors. Of these noble projects we now do not hear one word. How are we to account for so ominous a silence? This certainly is not due to their having been accomplished, because the Irish and the priests, and the Germans, and the Pope and the Cardinals are to our certain knowledge as rampant as ever. So that in the presence of these facts we are forced into the conclusion that the American Party had abandoned its work, and flung away its nomination for the same reason that Mack laid down his arms at Ulm—because it was the best thing they could do. And we still think we are right. Because if, as the "Delegate" attempts to show, it has left us at the mercy of foreigners for the purpose of looking after Slavery and the Canals, it is the American Party no longer. It is the Canal Party, or the Union Party, or anything else you please, and a very shaky concern at that; but the American Party it can no longer claim to be.

[illegible] yesterday morning, comments very sharply upon Mr. BOTTOME's share in the uproar about the Judges' salaries which is raging just now, and at the same time undertakes to furnish us with "the bare facts of the case, stripped of technicalities." Mr. BOTTOME is competent, we presume, to take care of himself; but about "the bare facts of the case," we have a word to say, which is this: we have never disputed one of them, nor, so far as we know, has anybody else who shares our view of the question.

We have always said—oftener than any other journal in the State—that the Judges' salaries were disgraceffully small. We acknowledge that the Legislature confirmed the action of the Board of Supervisors in increasing them in 1852; that Comptroller FLAGG refused to pay that increase; and that the Legislature this year voted that increase over again, eluding the Constitutional provision by calling it "arrearages." We acknowledge that the Board may vote a Judge coming into this District or Circuit a certain sum as "mileage," and that Congress may repair the White House by an appropriation over and above the President's salary. All of which being fully conceded, we are sorry to inform "A Lawyer" that the point in dispute stands exactly as before, untouched and unchanged. He thinks, or appears to think, that the whole difficulty is got rid of by calling the proposed increase "compensation," or "mileage," or "arrearages," or any name but "salary;" that, in short, if a Court of law can be got to pronounce the action of the Board legal, under a strict and technical interpretation of the Constitution, the public ought to close its mouth and be satisfied. But the spirit of the Constitution, by which alone the Judges, at least so far as their own action is concerned in a matter of such delicacy as the amount of their salaries, ought to be governed, prescribes that it shall not be in the power of any man, or body of men, whether it be a political majority in the Legislature, or a political majority in the Board of Supervisors, to vote under any pretext whatever, more money to a Judge than the sum for which he agreed to serve when taking office. Any increase to be made in the salaries should be made to take effect upon the commencement of new terms of office.

"A Lawyer" asks us "if it is safe for the interest of litigants in this City that the Judges of our highest tribunals should have less compensation than the Corporation Counsel allows to one of the clerks in his office." Certainly not, we reply; but we ask, in return, is it safe in this time of desperate corruption and unscrupulous intrigue, to place it in the power of any lobby agent, or wire-puller, or scurvy politician, or knavish contractor, to walk up to the "Judges of our highest tribunals" and tell them that he can get their salaries raised at the next session of the Legislature, or "compensation" voted to them at the next meeting of the Board of Supervisors, or that he can command votes enough to prevent their being raised? When Street Commissionerships, and Police Commissionerships, and contracts, and jobs of all sorts are daily before the Courts, is it safe, we ask, to place in the hands of politicians the power of suddenly and arbitrarily raising the pay of the Judges who are actually on the bench? If this be safe, we can only say that our notions of danger are extremely confused.

Spectacular Suicide.

When the now notorious M. BLONDIN, be he myth or man, first announced his intention of converting the Falls of Niagara into a cheap circus, and of combining the excusable claptrap of the modern saw-dust with the brutal excitements of the Pagan arena, we protested in the name of public decency and civilization against the establishment of so disgraceful a precedent for more audacious mountebanks to come. The worthy people of New-York took both our protest and M. BLONDIN very warmly to heart, though in two very different senses. We have cried in their streets, but in vain; for BLONDIN rapidly danced and grimaced them out of all consideration of the real nature of the "amusement" which he offered them. The voice of the dead, however, is in some things more impressive than the voice of the living; and out of a horrible pit of slaughter, still reeking with blood, at Albion, in this State, the voice of the dead now speaks in terrible criticism upon the senseless and wicked trifling with human life and human feelings, implied in such performances as those of the man-monkey of Niagara. At that place a young man whose name is not given, and of whose fate nobody seems yet to have any idea, announced that he would imitate the rope-walking of BLONDIN in an equally perilous style. Hundreds of persons, many of whom might have hesitated perhaps to pay a man for playing at murder, assembled to witness this practical jesting with suicide. The young man set out upon his rope, but just when the excitement was at its height, and the fear or hope of his failure was agitating the crowd most intensely, there came a fearful crash. Not the rope of the rope-dancer, but a great bridge crowded with spectators gave way suddenly, and a frightful massacre followed, in the midst of which the acrobat vanished, and has been seen no more. He had probably been shaken by the shock from his airy pathway, and shared the fate of SAM PATCH, that leaper, who leaped not wisely but too well, and of DELAYE, the Genesee rival of Niagara BLONDIN.

And now who shall be held responsible for this most frightful because most uncalled-for sacrifice of human life? Poetical justice would point to BLONDIN himself, the great head and front of all this offending, without whose influence rope-dancing with death would have remained the exclusive privilege of those upon whom the law's last sentence had been laid. Practical justice puts the murder, in part, upon the builders of the treacherous bridge itself, but far more seriously upon the people themselves, whose toleration of outrageous spectacles, merely in consideration of their power to thrill and agonize the nerves, makes everything possible to men who dare to speculate with their own flesh and blood in the dearest sanctities of Nature, and in the best proprieties of civilized life.

BENNETT AND HIS BOILERS.—The humanizing effect of agricultural pursuits upon the character has been often sung by poets, but all their fancies have never painted a prettier illustration of the truth than is afforded by the case of the Columbus of Plum Gut since he took to the culture of Pumpkins. In his more urbane days BENNETT was a ravening bird of prey, "sailing on obscene wings athwart the noon." He used then to take no thought for the safety or welfare of any human creature, but flung his little bombs and torpedoes about in all directions to the great terror of women and children, and often to the damage of perfectly innocent people. In fact he got himself into a good many scrapes through these reckless habits of his, and earned a number of very sound thrashings, which, however, failed to cure him of the inherent passion for petty mischief. But when all back falls to his share, [illegible] the uncouth vegetables which have now engaged the lingering spray of his declining years. Planting pumpkins on Washington Heights, the poor old man finds the gentleness and innocence of the pumpkin gradually pass into his nature and battered being. The moon-faced cucumber is making him quite a squash for the softness of his sympathies. He has made such progress in this direction that he has actually become alarmed about the condition of his dreary and dilapidated old tenement in Nassau-street, and has ordered a careful examination of the boilers in his cellar. The notorious decay of the establishment had for some time past excited no little uneasiness in the neighborhood. It was bad enough to have BENNETT so near one; but BENNETT in charge of a set of rotten boilers, really was past all bearing. It will, therefore, carry delight to hundreds of hearts to know that the great pumpkin-grower has been touched by the perils of his people about him. Of course, in his present disjointed condition, it would be too much to expect that he should effectually secure the world by refitting his venerable rookery with the modern improvements. But the good disposition he has shown in patching up his rusty kettles, is really so creditable to him and to his instructors, the pumpkins, that we can't refrain from giving this honor where honor is due.

NEWS BY TELEGRAPH.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT FROM COSTA RICA.

Construction of the Reactionary Government.

Address of the New President to the People.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 30.

By dispatches received yesterday, the State Department is in possession of important information from the new Government of Costa Rica, showing the Revolution to be popular, and the new order of things firmly established. The following Cabinet had been formed:

Minister of the Treasury—Don VICENTE AGUILAR, the Rothschild of Costa Rica.

Minister of the Interior—Don JULIAN VOLIO, nephew of the Bishop.

Minister of Foreign Affairs—Don JESUS JIMENEZ, said to be the ablest man in the Republic.

However much the means adopted to secure the change in affairs may be condemned, strong hopes are entertained by our Government that the result will be most beneficial to Costa Rica.

The Provisional President had issued the following address:

FELLOW-CITIZENS: The spontaneous motion of the nation has called me to preside temporarily over their destiny, and I, at the sacrifice of my private life, shall fulfill the exalted mission confided to me, and give the country such liberal institutions as may combine with Order and Peace to guide it to Progress, the object after which it aspires.

Let us return thanks to the Almighty, who designed to change our situation without violence, without a single drop of blood having been shed, or a single priming burnt.

Let us also acknowledge the important services of, and return the most expressive marks of gratitude to, our honorable and gallant soldiers, and more especially to their heroic chief—Don LORENZO SALAZAR and Don MARIANO BLANCO.

May public felicity, liberty, with order and progress be the reward of your fellow-citizens and friends.

JOSE MARIA MONTEAGELA.

NATIONAL PALACE, SAN JOSE, Aug. 14, 1859.

The dispatches state that the new order of things was hailed with enthusiasm by the other Provinces of the Republic, and refer to the following evidences of the fact:

First—An address voted by the inhabitants of the Province of Cartago, headed by the Governor, approving of all that had been done at the capital.

Second—An address by the Governor and inhabitants of the Province of Heredia, approving of the measures taken in San José.

Third—A similar address by the Governor and inhabitants of Alejuela.

Fourth—The same by twenty-six families of San Ramon.

Fifth—The same by the Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs.

Sixth—The same by the Province of Liberia.

Seventh—The same by the Court of Justice, congratulating the Minister of Justice and the Provisional President.

Copies of all these several documents, I understand, were laid before the Cabinet to-day, by Secretary CASS.

The spirit of the Revolution, too, gives satisfaction to the Administration. The dispatches cover several decrees already issued. One recalls all exiles, and annuls all banishments made by President MORA, except where there had been regular conviction before a competent tribunal. Another decree convenes the Costa Ricans for the election of Deputies to the National Constituent Assembly, with a view to remodeling the Constitution, and providing for the election of a President. It also appears that the Revolution originated mainly in the fact that President MORA had monopolized the whole Government for his family, which no one dared to complain of lest he should be banished as a person dangerous to the peace of the public—such being within the constitutional power of MORA, whose brother was Commander-in-Chief of the army, and whose brother-in-law was Minister of the Treasury. The Nicaraguan Mail Service—Gen. Harney's Dispatches—Presentation to the Pimos and Maricopa Indians, &c.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 30.

Most positive assurances have been given to-day that the Nicaraguan Mail will be carried promptly according to the contract; that fifty men are now engaged in improving the route, and that the mules are on the ground ready for the service. How much of this is believed I am unable to say.

[FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Friday, Sept. 30.

The President has recognized WILHELM LUDWIG KIRSNER as Consul of the Kingdom of Wurtemburg at Philadelphia.

Mr. LISBOA, the new Brazilian minister, accompanied by his family, has arrived in Washington.

Arizona dates of the 15th inst. are received. The presentation of the articles purchased for the Pimos and Maricopa Indians, under the act of Congress of February last, was made by Lieut. MOWRY, on the 10th of September. Between four and five thousand Indians were present. About 2,000 farming implements, several thousand pounds of barley and other grain for seed, axes, etc., besides several thousand yards of cloth, calico shirts, tobacco, and beads, were distributed. The reason of these large presents was explained in a speech by Lieut. MOWRY, and in reply the chiefs expressed great satisfaction at the kindness of their Great Father, the President, and promised to continue in the good conduct which had brought them so great a reward. The Pimos and Maricopas cultivate, this year, 16,000 [illegible] of the Gila River, [illegible] quantities of grain. Recent advices from Mexico state that Gen. ALVAREZ was preparing to march on the City of Mexico with a force of 6,000 men, consisting of cavalry, infantry and artillery.

The defeat of the Liberals under Gen. DECOLLADO, at Leon, by Gen. WOLL is confirmed. WOLL's forces, however, were decimated.

MIRAMON had republished the decree of SANTA ANNA of 1843, forbidding foreigners entering Mexico with arms and invading designs, under penalty of death.

THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA.
VOL. VII. NOW READY.
D. APPLETON & CO., Nos. 346 and 348 Broadway,
HAVE NOW READY:
VOLS. I.—VII.
THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPÆDIA,
FORMING
A COMPLETE DICTIONARY OF GENERAL KNOWLEDGE.
Edited by CHAS. A. DANA and GEORGE RIPLEY.
The work will be published exclusively by subscription, in about 15 large octavo volumes, each containing 750 two-column pages, and in exterior appearance will be at once elegant and substantial. The volumes will be issued serially in cloth, $3; library style, leather, $3 50; half morocco, $4; half Russia extra, $4 50; each payable on delivery. (Vol. VII. just ready.)
Containing, among other articles, the following:
Edwards, Jonathan, by George Bancroft; Egypt, by Robert Carter; Electricity, Engraving, Fire-Engine, Fossil Foot-Prints, by J. P. Hodge; Elephant, Entomology, and Ethnology, by Dr. Kneeland; Queen Elizabeth, History of England, Prince Eugene, by C. C. Haswell; Episcopal Church, by the Rev. Dr. Wilson; Epsom, Entozoa, Epiphyllis, by Dr. White; Europe, by Dr. Baxter; Alexander Everett, Edward Everett, by G. S. Hillard; Euripides, by Prof. C. C. Felton; France, by F. Arnon. Among the biographies of living men are those of the Rev. Dr. Ellis, R. W. Emerson, G. B. Emerson, the Hon. Thomas Ewing, the Rev. Dr. Faber, T. S. Fay, Prof. C. C. Felton, W. P. Fessenden, the Rev. Dr. Finney, Henry S. Foote, Peter Force, the Rev. Dr. Frothingham, Richard Frothingham, Jr. Most of the law articles in this volume are contributed by Prof. Theophilus Parsons of Harvard University.
From the North American Review.
We can turn to no title which does not confirm our confidence in the judicious distribution of the work. Each article seems to have been written by an expert in the department to which it belongs. There can be no doubt that, at least for the use of American readers, and in some respects wherever the English language is spoken, the Cyclopædia will greatly surpass in its value as a reference book any similar compilation that has yet been issued on either side of the Atlantic.

CHESS ☞ CHESS.
"THE EUCLID OF CHESS."
Now Ready:
THE BOOK OF THE FIRST AMERICAN CHESS CONGRESS.
CONTAINING THE PROCEEDINGS OF THAT CELEBRATED ASSEMBLAGE HELD IN NEW-YORK, IN THE YEAR 1857, WITH THE PAPERS READ IN ITS SESSIONS, THE GAMES PLAYED IN THE GRAND TOURNAMENT, AND THE DIVAGATIONS ENTERED IN THE PROBLEM TOURNAY; TOGETHER WITH SKETCHES OF THE HISTORY OF CHESS IN THE OLD AND NEW WORLDS.
BY
DANIEL WILLARD FISKE, M. A.,
Official Secretary of the Congress, Editor of the Chess Monthly, &c.
Adorned with a magnificent unpublished stratagem by Mr. Eugene B. Cook, in sixty-eight moves, engraved and printed in colors.
One large 12mo. volume, 535 pp. Muslin, elegant. Price $2 50.
OPINIONS OF THE CHESS EDITORS.
From the Cincinnati Gazette.
"The most original, and at the same time the most interesting book on Chess yet issued from the American Press."
From the North American and United States Gazette.
"Altogether the most notable work which the Chess fever has yet called out."
From the Century.
This volume has long been waited for with peculiar interest, and it is not extravagant to say that it will compensate for the waiting. It will at once be adopted as the American Euclid of Chess.
From the Albion.
It will be welcome to every gentleman who takes an interest in the noble game. Its contents insure for it a permanent value.
From the Baltimore Weekly Dispatch.
The advent of this work has, for some time, been impatiently desired by the Chess circles of this country as well as of Europe, and although its publication has been delayed, the delay has but enhanced its value. It is an elegant and erudite work.
This book will be sent by mail, postage free, to any part of the United States, on receipt of the price, by

THE POPULAR BIOGRAPHY.
Third Edition now ready.
THE LIFE AND TRAVELS OF ALEXANDER VON HUMBOLDT.
With an Introduction from the pen of BAYARD TAYLOR, Esq.
With a new steel portrait, engraved expressly for this work, from an original photograph in the possession of Mr. Bayard Taylor. One large 12mo. volume, 496 pages, muslin. Price $1 25.
"I can testify to its exactness and completeness."—Bayard Taylor.
OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.
From the New-York Tribune.
The compiler has met with excellent success in producing an agreeable narrative, from materials that are not especially adapted to popular treatment. He has accomplished the difficult task of fusing a great variety of details into a smooth and glowing description, and presenting to the mass of readers a definite conception of scientific labors of which they had previously only heard by report. In this respect no one volume in the English language can be compared with it for a moment.
From the Cincinnati Daily Gazette.
This monument to a great and good man has the twofold advantage of a posthumous memoir and an autobiography. With the completeness and impartiality of the one, it combines the freshness and vivacity of the other.
From the Sunday Courier.
A better biography for popular reading has never before been given to the world.
This book will be sent by mail, postage free, to any part of the United States, on the receipt of the price, by
RUDD & CARLETON, Publishers and Booksellers,
No. 130 Grand-st., near Broadway, N. Y.

SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. M. C. KNOX, Lewistown, Penn.
"It has stopped the falling of my hair, and caused a new growth, although I did not attend to it as your directions require."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. ANOS BLANCHARD, Meriden, N. H.
"We think very highly of your preparations, and have no doubt if you had an agent in this vicinity a large quantity might be disposed of."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. B. C. SMITH, Fredsburg, N. Y.
"I was really surprised to find my gray hair soon turned as black as when I was a young man."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. JAS. MCFARLANE, Pastor Protestant Dutch Church, Esopus, Ulster County, N. Y.
"I have no hesitation in certifying that Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair restorer and Zylobalsamum have produced all the effects described in her advertisement, in restoring the color and increasing the growth of the hair; and I would cheerfully recommend it to those whose hair may either begin to fall in color or decrease in luxuriance."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. GEORGE M. SCRANS, Agent Pennsylvania Baptist Publishing Society, Lewisburgh, Union County, Penn.
"Several persons have applied to me to procure for them your World's Hair Restorer, since they have seen its good effects upon the hair of one of my family. We can and do cheerfully recommend it."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. D. MORRIS, Cross River, Westchester County, N. Y.
Who is known throughout this State, says: "I know of a great many who have had their hair restored by the use of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. J. A. H. CORNELL, Corres. Sec. Board Education, R. D. Church, No. 337 Broadway, New-York, and New-Baltimore, Greene County, N. Y.
"Some time since I procured a bottle of your World's Hair Restorer, &c., for the use of a relative, and I am happy to say that it prevented the falling of the hair, and restored it from being gray to its originally glossy and beautiful black."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
The Rev. R. H. PEASLEE, Editor Presbyterian Witness, Cincinnati, Ohio.
"It is our settled policy to advertise nothing till we know it is what it purports to be. Having opportunity, and becoming satisfied of the merits of Mrs. S. A. Allen's Hair World's Restorer and Zylobalsamum, I would be pleased to insert advertisement, &c."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
GREAT BRITAIN.—The Rev. W. B. THORNELOE, Prescot, Lancashire, England.
"Your hair restorer is a perfect marvel. After having used it for six weeks, my extremely gray hair was restored to its natural color, not the wig-like appearance produced by dyes, but to its own natural color; which satisfies my mind that it is not a dye. I shall strongly recommend it, and shall feel happy in answering the queries of one you may refer to me."
(The above clergyman is well known throughout Great Britain, and to many in the United States.)
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
HAITI.—The Rev. MYS. E. C. ANDRUS (many years Missionary to Hayti), Martinsburg, N. Y.
In consequence of her long residence in aforenamed island, her hair and scalp was in a very unhealthy condition. After trying various articles without success, and eventually using Mrs. S. A. Allen's, she writes to the American Baptist: "I have derived much benefit from the use of Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum; I have tried various other remedies for my hair, but never anything that so materially and permanently benefited me as has those of Mrs. S. A. Allen."
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

TO THE BE-DRUGGED AND POISONED CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES.
There is no doubting the fact that you are overrun with a deluge of the vilest compounds in the form of "Alcoholic Drinks" that ever emanated from that pest of society, the Liquor Mixer. They are sold to you as a luxury, or they are dispensed to you as a medicine, and in either case the effect is the same.
There is but one way to escape, and that is to use, as a luxury or a medicament, a safe and reliable stimulant, sold under stamp and seal, which renders it certain that it has not been tampered with. Such an article is which is distilled under inspection of the British Government, is delicately flavored (unlike any other Gin) with some of the most valuable restoratives of the Vegetable Kingdom, and is by far the most healthy beverage extant.
The most eminent physicians of Europe and America not only recommend its use by the hale and hearty, but prescribe it as a medicine where a stimulant is required.
Dr. Valentine Mott, of New-York, says, "It is the best article of the kind I have ever seen."
The female sex will find it not only a pleasant Cordial, but a certain relief in sufferings of a periodical character.
Analytical Chemists of all ranks pronounce it perfectly pure, and its restorative merits incomparable.
Sold only in quart and pint bottles by all druggists, grocers, &c.

WING'S PARINA CRACKERS.
It is now acknowledged that one of the best articles of food ever presented is
WING'S GRAHAM AND FARINA CRACKERS.
The great excellence of these crackers has caused them to be received everywhere with unprecedented favor, and this high opinion is spreading continually.
No other description of food has ever been manufactured which has proved equal to
WING'S FARINA CRACKERS
for all ages and under all conditions of the system.
Not only infants, but children in various conditions have been restored to health, and made to grow up strength, as well as those feeble and good-natured manifestations which a freedom from suffering induces, and thousands have been made to forget their pains and troubles in the smiles and joyful glee of vigorous health, bounding in health more beautiful, and a true blessing to their parents.
CHILDREN ATTENDING SCHOOL,
as well as
YOUNG LADIES AND YOUNG GENTLEMEN, have been immeasurably benefited by the free use of
WING'S FARINA CRACKERS.
The condition of their bodily power being rendered more healthful, their mental vigor is increased, and they pursue their studies more earnestly, acquiring their lessons with greater ease, rendering the pathway up to knowledge more pleasant, and the attainment of a greater eminence probable.
FEEBLE MOTHERS
Always find
WING'S CRACKERS A BLESSING.
These crackers contain as much more nourishment for the same weight than any other food, and are so easy for the stomach, being digested without any trouble to the most delicate, that physicians and nurses recommend them as being superior to any nourishment heretofore known, especially as they give strength without any feverish tendency, being one of the most delicate and agreeable kinds of food that could be compared for the sick.
DYSPEPTIC PERSONS, OR PERSONS OF SEDENTARY HABITS,
will find these crackers most acceptable.
Thousands have been relieved by the frequent or daily use of
WING'S CRACKERS.
The continued use of Wing's crackers will invariably give a regularity to the system which no other article of food will do, and a buoyancy to the spirits entirely heretofore as a property belonging to any nourishment to such an extent as that produced by Wing's Farina Crackers.
There is a natural, highly invigorating, and active principle belonging to the material of which are made. This, as far as practicable, is retained in the original strength, rendering Wing's crackers one of the most remarkable productions of modern times, and one of inestimable value in promoting the health of all who use them.
THE IMMENSE SALES of these crackers astonish every one who is not acquainted with their highly valuable and extraordinary properties.
Those who are them regularly think, as all who think who become acquainted with their true excellence, viz: that they ought to be used in every family, in every hotel, in every nursery or hospital, on board of every steamer or ship, and everywhere where food is convenient, healthful and economical can be used.
All those who may wish to procure these valuable crackers should understand that there are no genuine farina crackers made but by Mr. Wing; all these are stamped with the name "A. Wing." Allow no person, therefore, to persuade you to buy any crackers for farina but Wing's.
This caution has become necessary, in consequence of an attempt by designing persons to sell the ordinary kind of crackers by calling them farina, and conveying the impression that they are like Wing's farina. Such an attempt at deception should be understood by all.
Wing's farina crackers may be procured of the best family grocers generally, by whom they are extensively sold in different portions of the United States, and at wholesale only of

HOWE'S IMPROVED SCALES.
(STRONG & ROSS' PATENT.)
FIRST CLASS PREMIUMS RECEIVED THREE YEARS IN SUCCESSION.
Report of the Committee at the Vermont State Fair, Burlington, Sept. 16, 1859:
SCALES.—The Scales on exhibition are from the manufactory of JOHN HOWE, Jr., FRANK E. HOWE, of BRANDON, VT., and No. 191 BROADWAY, N. Y. The Committee can only say that these scales show great beauty, style and finish, and weigh under the severest test with the nicest degree of exactness. Well may Vermont challenge the world with the manufacture of Scales, from the largest size of hay and cattle scales down to those of the Post-Office Scales. We think they can be shown superior to those manufactured by John Howe, Jr., of the Strong & Ross patent. We therefore most cheerfully award diplomas and premiums for the different kinds put on exhibition.
PREMIUMS.
John Howe, Jr., and Frank E. Howe, of Brandon, Vt., and No. 191 Broadway, N. Y., 6-ton hay and cattle scales, ... Diploma and $5.
Two drop lever scales, four portable scales, ... Diploma and $5.
One union scale, one grocer scale, one Post-Office balance, ... Diploma and $5.
All sizes for sale, and a four-ton scale set up on the floor for inspection, at

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.
This elegant preparation is warranted to restore gray hair to its original color, without injury to the health, and is free from the poisonous ingredients so common in other preparations. It will not soil the most delicate linen, and is the only hair preparation which has been awarded a premium at the World's Fair. Its effects are permanent, and it contains no material injurious to the most delicate hair. Its operation is gradual, and its effect is to leave the hair soft, pliable, and free from dandruff. It will not stain the skin, and is the only hair preparation which has been found free from poisonous ingredients. It is warranted to prevent the hair from falling out, and to prevent baldness in most cases. It will not fail to restore the hair in all cases of baldness where the roots are not entirely destroyed, or the glands of the skin are not entirely decayed. It will stop the hair from falling out in a few days, and in a few weeks will cause a new growth of hair to spring up, even on the heads of those who have been bald for years. It will prevent the hair from becoming gray, and will restore the hair to its original color in all cases where the roots are not entirely decayed. It will cure all diseases of the hair and scalp, such as scurf, dandruff, &c. It will make the hair grow on those parts of the head where it has been cut for the purpose of inserting a plaster. Masters. CLARKE & FANNING, PRINCIPALS.
Opens the seventeenth scholastic year, Sept. 12, 1859. Male pupils of all ages are received and instructed in all branches preparatory to business or college. The number of pupils in all the departments is two hundred. The Principals are assisted by 18 Classics, Mathematics, Natural Sciences, French, German, Spanish, Book-keeping, Drawing, Penmanship, Elocution, Composition, &c., by TEN experienced Professors and Instructors.
Advanced students of the Classical Department are prepared for entering on the study of the authors required for admission to the Freshmen and Sophomore classes of College, under the tuition of Prof. JOHN MCFARLAND, who has, during more than seventy years of devotion to Latin and Greek classics, prepared many New-York students for Columbia and other Colleges, among whom are Mr. Orlando H. Morris, of this City, for the Freshman Class of Columbia College; Mr. Bernard Fratte, son of the late Mayor of St. Louis, for the Freshman Class of Yale College; and Mr. Cornelius King, son of the President of Columbia College, for the Junior Class of that institution.
The advanced classes in French have been placed under the instruction of Prof. DE GREE, who is eminent for imparting a correct conversational use of the language.
CONDITIONS OF GRADUATION.
A double course of study is pursued in this Institution; namely, a business and a college course.
The branches in which candidates for the diploma, who take the College-Course, are required to be prepared, are as follows:
I. Mental and Theoretical Arithmetic.
II. Davies' Bourdon's Algebra, and four books of Plane Geometry.
III. Book-keeping by double entry.
IV. Ability to translate and write correctly one foreign language.
V. Knowledge of general history.
VI. Ability to write, in a legible commercial hand, an English Essay, free from grammatical and rhetorical errors.
The branches in which candidates for the Diploma, who take the College-Course, are required to be prepared, are as follows:

New and second-hand Pianos and Melodeons to rent. Rent allowed, if purchased.
A. M. KANOUSE, No. 425 Broadway.

THE DRIGGS PATENT PIANO-FORTE
Are all of the full scale of 7-octave. The most experienced workmen, the greatest perfection of mechanical skill, and the best seasoned materials are employed in their manufacture.
They are constructed on a solid iron frame or bed-plate, entirely separate from the case, thus relieving the sound-board and all the wood-work from the strain of the strings, making them much more solid and enduring. There are two sounding boards, arranged on the ribs of a violin, giving three times the amount of vibrating surface found in any other piano; which, being free from the strain of the strings, become more sonorous and pure on their vibrations as the piano becomes older. Their construction is the most simple and scientific, and they are the most enduring and full-toned pianos ever made. Call and see them, at WM. HALL & SON'S, New store, No. 543 Broadway, Between Spring and Prince sts.

INSURANCE.

THE
LIFE
INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW-YORK.
Office in
Continental Bank Building,
No. 7 Nassau-st.,
Is prepared to issue Policies as follows, viz:
POLICIES IN FAVOR OF AND PAYABLE TO THE WIFE,
Free from the claims of creditors.
POLICIES PAYABLE ON ATTAINING A SPECIFIED AGE,
Or payable in case of death before attaining such age.
POLICIES GRANTED TO CREDITORS,
On the lives of their debtors.
POLICIES GRANTED FOR ANY SUMMS OF TIME,
PREMIUMS PAYABLE IN CASH,
Quarterly, semi-annually, or annually.
DIVIDENDS DECLARED EVERY THREE YEARS.
And the surplus belonging to the policy holders returned to them in Scrip.
This Scrip bears six per cent. per annum interest, payable in cash, and is redeemed when the aggregate issue shall have amounted to $1,000,000.
At the same time, the Company is empowered by its Charter to purchase the Scrip for the benefit of the policy holders before that time.
This Scrip is not affected by the forfeiture or sale of the policy, which is a great advantage over the system adopted by some Companies, of subjecting the dividend to the same terms of forfeiture and sale as the policy by indorsing it thereon. This is clearly unjust, as the dividend is a surplus fund, and is rightly the property of the insured, irrespective of the policy.
The interest on the Scrip gradually reduces the premium.
ITS PREMIUMS
ARE BASED UPON EXPERIENCE TO THE PRESENT TIME.
No one class of insurers is required to pay the deficiency of others.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

[illegible] of the Republican Committee yesterday, all the members were present except Mayor TIEMANN, who had gone home unwell early in the day. The complaint against Ald. A. S. Jones, charging him with receiving a bribe, was dismissed. Messrs. SULLIVAN and BARRY continued voting with respect to this matter. Officer Wm. E. Tomes, of the Fourth Precinct, was dismissed from the Department. Officer HENRY H. STEPHENS, of the Twenty-second Precinct, was fined thirty days' pay for playing cards in a porter-house with his uniform on. Mr. BOWEN presented a resolution in favor of appointing Messrs. SULLIVAN and SULLIVAN, Mayor TIEMANN and Mayor POWELL a Committee to exhibit a list of poll-clerks for the next election at the next meeting of the Board, and declaring that in the appointment of poll-clerks it is just and proper that both political parties be represented at each poll, and that where it is practicable one Democrat and one Republican should be appointed for each district. The resolution was adopted. The resignation of John B. Parsons, of the Twenty-first Precinct, was accepted, and the Board adjourned to Friday next, at 1:45 P. M.

THE TAMMANY HALL SLATE.—A correspondent of the Philadelphia Press informs that paper that the leaders of the lodges here have agreed upon Postmaster ROBERT T. ROWLAND on the nominee for Mayor. "JOHN E. DEVLIN (son-in-law of STARKS, of the Astor House,) is to be the candidate for Corporation Counsel, Wm. H. LEWIS is to be the nominee for Justice of the Supreme Court, the Hon. Judge MOSCHZISKER to be renominated for Justice of the Superior Court, HENRY ALKEN, a German personal friend of JAMES T. BRADY, probably to be nominated for Judge of the Marine Court. Senator MORGAN, RAY and BOSWORTH will be renominated to the Senate from the Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Districts, and ROMAIN B. CONSTANT from the Seventh, in place of DOUBLEDAY, deceased. Gov. MCKEAON will be renominated for Governor of the Almshouse.

THE LAST REFINEMENT IN BUSINESS DRUMMING.—The financial editor of the Independent, referring to some of the modern extravagances practiced by jobbing-houses at Boston and elsewhere, in the way of morning courtesies, says: "We are reliably informed that a large business firm in this City have now completed with their establishment, in full blast, a well-appointed eating, drinking, and smoking saloon, where the messengers of the house are regularly introduced at certain hours, and if occasion requires, at any time, if it is too long protracted, a young man is dispatched in the evening to the hotel, with a bottle of wine, to "jog the memory" of the delinquent."

COMPLIMENT TO COL. DURYEA.—A large number of the most prominent merchants in the City have started a subscription for the purpose of presenting a token of their regard and appreciation to Col. H. DURYEA, who has recently retired from the command of the Twenty-fourth Regiment. He has done the City an essential service in bringing this body of troops to its present high state of discipline and efficiency, and in thus creating a proper esprit de corps among our citizen-soldiery. Numerous forms have already subscribed the following each: and we understand that the list will be kept open a week longer at the store of MAITLAND, PHAIR & Co., No. 47 Exchange-place.

A COMPLIMENTARY VERDICT.—The Jury, in the case of JAMES GAFFNEY, who was crushed to death by the falling of a wall at Nos. 113 and 115 Greenwich-street—the particulars of which were published in yesterday's Times—returned the following peculiar verdict: "JAMES GAFFNEY came to his death by injuries received by the falling of an area wall on premises Nos. 113 and 115 Greenwich-street, and the accident was caused by the negligence of deceased in removing the bracing from said wall; and they further censure the owner and foreman in not keeping a strict watch over said brace and wall."

A DEAD BODY FOUND IN JONES' WOODS.—Some boys, while playing in Jones' Woods on Thursday, found the body of a respectably-dressed man, about [illegible] years of age, and apparently a German, who had been dead but a few hours. Two white pocket-handkerchiefs—one marked CAROLINE T. E. SILL—a paper on which was written 93 Elm-st., and an empty laudanum vial, were found in his pockets. A post-mortem examination revealed a quantity of the narcotic in the stomach of deceased. Coroner JACKMAN's jury rendered a verdict that death resulted from its effects.

REPAIRING THE CITY HALL.—The initiatory steps in the work of repairing the City Hall were taken yesterday. Workmen were busy there hoisting a derrick, on which the girders of the roof are to be supported, in the second story. After they had done this, however, they were compelled to rest from their labors, for the carpenters were not there to cut away the wood-work under the roof. The carpenters will be engaged there to-day.

THE BROADWAY SHOOTING CASE.—JAMES CARNEY, who, in company with several others, attacked a party of young men, on Friday night, 23d ult., near the Brandreth House, and was shot by one of the assailed, lies at the City Hospital in about the same condition as previously reported. Dr. HULL, one of the surgeons of the Hospital, who has the patient under his care, thinks he will recover.

THE FLOATING HOSPITAL.—The hulk, Florence Nightingale, which has been used for some time past as a floating hospital in the Lower Bay, was brought up yesterday morning and anchored off Staten Island, where, it is said, she will remain until Winter, and then she will be hauled alongside the public-store dock at Quarantine.

ELECTION OF ASSISTANT-RECTOR OF TRINITY CHURCH.—The Corporation of Trinity, at a meeting on the 29th inst., elected to the office of Assistant-Rector the Rev. Mr. MORGAN DIX, their youngest Assistant-Minister. Mr. DIX was ordained Deacon in 1852, and in 1855 was appointed an Assistant-Minister of Trinity Church at the same time with Drs. HAIGHT, HOBART, WESTON, VINTON, OGILBY and YOUNG.

Police Reports.

A HORSE THIEF'S CONFESSION.—A young man named John Jones, alias Clifford, alias Robinson, was arrested, on Wednesday, on board of one of the southern steamers, just before her departure, on a charge of being a horse thief. After having spent some time in a cell at the Eleventh Ward Station-house, the prisoner confessed some of his misdeeds to Capt. Squires. He said that he stole a fine pair of horses, with sleigh and robes to match, some months ago, from a stable in Waterford, Erie County, Penn. Driving as far as possible the first day, he disposed of the sleigh and robes for a mere song, and started the next morning on horseback, leading the other animal. Soon he met a clergyman, who was on his way to preach in a neighboring village. Engaging in conversation, Clifford prevailed on the divine to exchange horses—receiving for the two stolen ones, not only the minister's nag, but two dollars in money, and a loaded revolver, which latter the minister said he never traveled without. Forsaking the company of the good man, the thief rode until he became weary and sore, when he sold the horse for all it was worth, and started for New-Orleans. There he squandered his money in dissipation. Thence he went up the Mississippi, and, after leading a dishonest life in several of the Western cities, he came on to New-York, where an accidental meeting with a man who knew him in New-Orleans resulted in his arrest. Clifford is held until the Pennsylvania authorities are heard from.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY AND RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS.—About a month ago, a young man named Joseph Pollock was passing at night through the Battery, on his way to his home, when he was waylaid and robbed of a heavy gold watch and chain, with a locket-seal attached, and $70 in money. He related the facts to the Police and described the property. The seal had been owned formerly by Officer FLAVIN, of the First Ward, and he kept a look-out for it. Yesterday, on the corner of Wall-street and Broadway, he observed a young man wearing the bauble. Of course, he inquired where he procured it, and he answered that he had purchased it a few days ago from a jeweler at No. 19 Rector-street, named Conrad Boeske. The latter was appealed to, and said it had been sold to him by a man he did not know. He was suspected, however, of being a receiver of stolen goods, and Alderman BERRY issued a warrant to have his place searched. Officers FLAVIN and HILLYER executed it, and found not only the stolen watch and chain, but a lot of dry goods, consisting of silks, flannels, &c., which Boeske finally acknowledged he had bought from John Paul Rance, a young man who is employed in a wholesale dry goods store, and the same person, the jeweler alleges, who sold him the watch, locket and seal. Rance was arrested. He admitted having stolen the goods and selling them to Boeske. Both prisoners were held for examination.

KNOW YOUR ROOM-MATES.—Elizabeth Robbins, Bertha Schultz and Charles Schermerhorn hired a wagon and went to Hoboken for a ride. They returned to the City rather late and very mellow. John Cane and Josephine Meyer invited them to spend the evening at the house of the latter, No. 41 McDougal-street. There the party drank more wine and afterwards all went to sleep in the same room. In the morning Cane was missing, and so was Elizabeth Robbins' gold watch, chain and diamond ring, valued in the aggregate at $105. Elizabeth told the story to a policeman, who found Cane, and Justice KELLEY had him locked up for examination.

BOILER EXPLOSIONS.

Bursting of a Boiler at the Girard House—One Man Killed and Another Badly Injured.

Soon after 8 o'clock yesterday morning a large boiler in the cellar of the Girard House, on the corner of West Broadway and Chambers-street, exploded with a loud report, instantly killing a man named JOHN O'CONNOR and severely scalding JOHN COLLINS, the fireman. The boiler was a locomotive boiler of the Montgomery pattern, some [illegible] feet long by 4 in diameter, and had been in use about two years. It was situated near the eastern party wall, and the force of the explosion was so great that the tessela[illegible] marble floor of the barber's shop, directly over [illegible] was upheaved to the ceiling—many of the blocks having splintered to pieces, and the joists of the floor were nearly all broken. The furniture in the shop was completely destroyed. There were three persons in the room when the flooring was blown up, and though they were much frightened they escaped unharmed by the shower of falling fragments. The glass in the windows of the reading-room, which is directly in front of the barber's shop, as well as that in the windows of the adjoining room, which is occupied as the office of the hotel, was smashed, and the window frames were forced into the street. The walls of the reading-room were also cracked by the concussion, the shock of which was felt by the occupants of the fifth story.

O'CONNOR, the deceased, was a plumber, and he had been engaged all night in repairing some of the water pipes, connected with the boiler. Just as the accident occurred he had sat down to rest. He was found quite dead, half buried in bricks and mortar. Upon examination a deep wound was found upon the left side of his head, made by a piece of the boiler iron, his left arm was broken, and both legs were fractured in several places. JOHN COLLINS, the fireman, was removed to the City Hospital. He was injured mostly from being scalded externally by the steam, although he sustained some severe bruises. The medical authorities at the Hospital do not regard his condition as very critical. He states that the boiler was nearly full of water at the time it exploded, and that the fires had just been lighted in the arches. [illegible] was not expect. The general impression [illegible] while repairing the pipes, [illegible] pipe and forgot all about it, and [illegible] of water into the boiler. [illegible] was generated too rapidly and the explosion followed. There was no engine attached to the boiler. It was simply used for driving a steam force-pump.

Coroner O'KEEFE summoned a jury yesterday, who visited the scene of the disaster and viewed O'CONNOR's body. It was not deemed advisable to take any testimony, however, until this morning, at 10 o'clock, when a thorough investigation is promised. Meantime, a number of engineers and machinists have been summoned to examine the boiler and give their opinions as to the cause of the explosion.

Explosion of a Boiler on Board a Propeller in the Bay.

While the propeller Enterprise, Capt. BENJ. VAN PELT, was proceeding down the Bay on Wednesday afternoon, she burst her boiler when within a short distance of the Lighthouse at Robbins Reef. One man is said to have been severely scalded, though not dangerously so; and aside from rendering the vessel disabled, no serious results attended the accident. After casting anchor, Capt. VAN PELT hoisted the usual signal of distress, which, it is stated, was observed, but entirely disregarded by those in charge of the Staten Island Ferry Company's boats, Huguenot and Staten Islander, which soon after passed within a short distance of the propeller. She was subsequently towed into Port Richmond by the steamer Jonas C. Heartt.

FRIDAY, Sept. 30—P. M.

The Foreign Exchanges are somewhat easier than on the last mail day. The business for the German steamers sailing to-morrow and to touch at Southampton is not large. The sales on London were at 110¼@110½ ⅌ cent., Bank and Bankers' bills, and 110@109¾ prime Merchant bills. On Paris, f.5.15@f.5.14¼. On both points there was more competition from Southern-drawn Exchange. In consequence of the dull demand, the Gold bars by the last California arrival were not all taken up for immediate shipment, and the amount of Specie to go forward to-morrow is about $650,000 in Gold, and $235,000 in Mexican Silver. From the South we hear that Exchange is held rather firmer than is now justified in this market, owing to the stiffness of our rates last week. Of course this difference will soon be equalized. The remittances at hand to-day leave a small loss, in some instances, particularly on London.

There is a good demand for Money from the Stock Brokers, with an easy supply at 6 ⅌ cent., on call, from outside lenders and the Trust Companies, and 6 @ 7 ⅌ cent. at Bank. In the Discount Market, the offering of strictly genuine mercantile paper, 4 @ 6 months, is hardly up to the demand, and a choice list was taken to-day as low as 6½ ⅌ cent., and other first-class paper at 7 ⅌ cent. outside of Bank. Fair or single name bills rate, as usual, 1½ @ 2 ⅌ cent. dearer to the borrower. There is no free supply of short acceptances, for the moment, to test the rates. Last transactions in choice names 6 @ 6½ ⅌ cent. The general appearance of the Money Market is one of much steadiness, considering the falling Bank Averages. The main reason for this appears to be that with the exception of some speculative business on the Stock Exchange, the demand is strictly of a regular and healthy mercantile character, there being few or no Railway, Real Estate or Steamship enterprises in the market for money.

The Stock Exchange was only moderately active in the sales of the day, with an undetermined tone at the close, as between the speculators for the rise or fall. The Bulls give the market less decided support than early in the week, while the Bears continue to increase their contracts on time, though without making much impression on New-York Central, Galena or Reading on the Share list, or Missouri sixes on the State Stocks. Central closes about ¼@⅜ lower than yesterday, the sales falling off to about 4,500 shares all told. Galena a fraction better than yesterday, and Reading in demand, both cash and on sellers' option. On the other hand, Rock Island sold down to 66 ⅌ cent. and closed 66¼ against 66¾@67, yesterday, and Toledo, Illinois Central and both the Michigan Roads were weak and lower. The last sale of Reading was 44¼, seller 30, not 43¾ as misprinted on the official list. Pacific Mail fell to 80 ⅌ cent., (and a fraction below on the printed list,) on a report in one of the morning papers that VANDERBILT is to carry a mail for the Government next week, in default of the Johnson contract. The report is not yet confirmed, and the California mails, from this side at least, are yet in abeyance, although something must be determined by Wednesday next. Panama shares are steady. The General market closed dull.

The transfers of the Erie Company closed this afternoon for the annual election, which is to take place on Tuesday week, October 11. We understand that the English delegation—Mr. EVANS, an experienced railway man, and his colleague—have had frequent interviews with the Receiver and other prominent parties here, interested as Stock and Bond brokers, and that the inclination of these conferences—though nothing definite will be determined until after the annual meeting and election on the 11th—is against any scaling process whatever, so far as the principal of the Bonds and Shares is in issue, but in favor of converting the non-mortgage Bonds into a Preference Stock, to bear 7 ⅌ cent. interest after a given date. It is the general wish, we believe, that the stockholders, as far as practicable, should attend the present meeting in person, and that all the old proxies, to whomsoever issued, should be revoked, or, at all events (where personal attendance is out of the question), renewed under instructions. The interest shown on the occasion by the Stockholders should be as direct and general as possible, to make sure of an able and diligent Board of Directors for the future management of the property.

The New Ocean Line.

From the San Francisco Daily National, Sept. 1.

We have before alluded to the proposed great improvement in ocean travel to California through the purchase of the magnificent steamships of the Collins' line. Advices from New-York inform us that through the joint agency of the Pacific Mail Company and that of the Panama Railroad, a Company has been formed under the name of the "North Atlantic," to place the steamships Atlantic, Baltic and Adriatic on the route from New-York to Aspinwall. On the 1st of October the contract between the United States Mail line and the Pacific Company will terminate, so that hereafter the Collins steamers above named, will connect with the Golden Age, Golden Gate, and others of the line on the Pacific. The importance of this improvement in our ocean travel cannot be too highly estimated. The Collins steamers are of vast capacity, fast, and will be fitted up with every comfort for steerage and cabin. They will rival the regularity of the boats on this side, and make direct trips, thus shortening the time several days. The establishment of this line will give greater inducements to immigration to California, affording more frequent voyages, and will give to steerage passengers a certainty of comfort and security never before attained on the Atlantic side. Our mercantile community, we are glad to know, will also be greatly benefited by ample freight room, as arrangements are being made for carrying a much larger quantity at moderate rates.

It remains to be seen whether California will sustain this enterprise—whether her citizens will give their countenance and support to maintain on the route the most costly and thoroughly constructed steamers in the world. We believe they will. The liberal management of the Pacific Company's steamers, their admirable appointments and fine order, the regularity and safety with which they have transported passengers, mails, and freight, for the last ten years—without loss—has become a part of the history of our State, and it cannot be doubted, that Californians have looked upon all this with pride and satisfaction. The stale cry of "monopoly" raised for the benefit of him whom a contemporary well-styles "the Highwayman of the Seas," can no longer avail. The present Company is an independent organization, without even Government patronage, and the clamor, which for years has pursued the Pacific Mail Company, can no longer attach to the line on either ocean. It may still be continued for political effect, but the people are tired of the child's play, which harps up a worn-out theme, and for partisan effect still keeps upon a puerile cry of "extortion" and "monopoly." The fact is, the Pacific Mail Company is now an incorporation with its stock diffused through a thousand channels; with President, Vice-President and Directors chosen by the people who own its stock. It has not now even a mail contract to entitle it to political opposition. With then, its capital, reliability and the new features so opportunely brought forward, this new ocean line may be of immense benefit to California, and we join with every right thinking citizen in giving it the fullest encouragement.

VANDERBILT and his black-mailing operations, it is said, have been brought to a close—not at the cost of California—but for the purpose of ridding us of his unreliable and irresponsible operations. Our shippers of treasure avoided him, and passengers took the mail line as the surest and safest. What then has been lost by this rumored "buying him up?" He has made room for a new line, one of capital, directed by men of acknowledged worth and integrity, and one on which we can depend in all times and seasons. We have the assurance of a prudent and strictly responsible administration of its affairs, giving to the public all the facilities required at the lowest cost. The charge so quickly brought forward that high fares will be the result of this arrangement, is silenced by the fact, that even the old line, without opposition, and in the face of the wildest Frazer River excitement, refused in New-York to advance steerage fare, and even reduced it at that time 25 per cent., in accordance with a promise made to the public months before the new mines were discovered.

"Monopoly and exorbitant rates of passage" may do as captions for sensation paragraphs in opposition journals, but the day for this clamor has passed by; much as it may have suited the times once, it is a senseless folly now. California has been calling loudly for a peoples line, and in the immense facilities afforded to us under these new arrangements, we can have it more fully and effectually, than under any of these ill-assorted organizations, which, bearing the name of the "people," only struggle for life for a year or two, and then sink all the capital invested.
